CODMAN QUIZ IN TURMOIL OVER MAYOR

Giving the Finance Commission "a taste of its own medicine," Mayor Mansfield today caused an uproar at the Codman Hill Construction Co. hearing by declining to appear as a witness this afternoon.

The mayor tried to read a statement, and offered to submit to cross-examination, two weeks ago, but at that time the Finance Commission declined to hear him.

Today the mayor was holding the spoon and the commission made wry faces before agreeing to wait until Monday at 10 a. m.

The commission had to wait a couple of hours before finding out whether this time was convenient for the mayor, but at last he sent word it was.

After threatening to summons the mayor, Special Counsel George R. Farnum agreed to let him come to voluntarily if he would promise to appear before the commission at 10 a. m. Monday.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph P. Brennan said he could give no such assurance. He was requested to get an answer from the mayor, the hearing meanwhile adjourning to await the reply.

In a bitter exchange, Brennan charged Farnum was violating a previous agreement not to call the mayor until all other testimony was in.

Farnum retorted that Mayor Mansfield was being accorded a special privilege not given to James M. Curley or Malcolm E. Nichols when they were mayor. Farnum said Curley and Nichols had been served with summonses, in the case of other Finance Commission investigations.

"We have been waiting 48 hours and now at the last minute the mayor says he can't come in this afternoon," said the special counsel.

"I was unable to extend the invitation to him until a few minutes ago," said Brennan.

Two weeks ago Mayor Mansfield tried to get the Finance Commission to hear him at that time but the commission refused.

GARY COOPER LOSS $25,000 IN ROBBERY

Los Angeles, July 30 (AP)—Two palatial West Los Angeles film celebrities' homes were robbed of jewelry and other valuables estimated at $33,000 in daring burglaries early today.

Police reported approximately $25,000 in jewelry and expensive table furnishings were taken at the home of Gary Cooper, screen star, and that gems worth $7863 were stolen from Sol Wurtzel, producer.

At the Cooper mansion the burglar cut a bathroom window screen and ransacked the house. A housekeeper made the discovery shortly before the actor and his wife, the former Veronica Balfe, returned from an evening engagement.

33-CART RING TAKEN

The burglar climbed to a balcony at the Wurtzel home, forced open a bedroom window and stole a jewel box belonging to Mrs. Wurtzel. Wurtzel reported to police the most valuable jewel missing was a 53-carat star sapphire ring which he valued at $7500.

Missing jewelry alone was worth upwards of $18,000, they said, and costly dinner plate, linens and clothing were also believed to have been taken.

LISTS STOLEN GEMS

Jewelry stolen included a platinum bracelet set with diamonds and rubies, valued at $2000; a platinum ring set with an eight-carat ruby, $5000; a cluster-set diamond ring, $1000; a red gold bracelet with an aquamarine, $2000; a pair of diamond and ruby-studded clips, $3000; a diamond cigarette case, $800; a gem-set compact, $300, and a pair of diamond earrings, $950.

Mrs. Cooper, an expectant mother, said she also missed two diamond bracelets and a gold rosary. The burglars entered by cutting a screen in a lower floor bathroom.

Heiress Bailed, Denies Guilt

Miss Katherine Maroney, 24, attractive heiress of Glastonbury, Conn., pleaded not guilty before Judge John Duff in municipal court today to charges that she had passed 18 worthless checks in this city.

Released from a cell earlier today on $200 bail furnished by herself after she had spurned the offer of three men friends to bail her, the girl asked Judge Duff, through Attorney Joseph M. McDonough, to continue the case for two weeks.

Attorney McDonough told the court she was the victim of an unfortunate circumstance in that she had not realized her account was overdrawn.

OFFERS TO PAY CHECKS

The attorney told the court he had in his possession $155, the amount listed by police as the total of the checks, and he assured the court each check the girl had cashed would be repaid.

A plea that the $200 bail originally set when she was taken into custody be allowed to stand, despite the 16 additional charges, was granted by Judge Duff, and the girl left court, promising she would return for trial on August 18.

After court Miss Maroney told reporters:

"This is all an unfortunate situation that I am in. I am really a victim of my own carelessness. I never had any intention of cashing a check that could not be covered by my account in a bank.

"You see, I receive a monthly income and it is credited to me in the bank.

"I have been in Boston studying law, and I had no idea when I handed out those checks they were not good. There isn't one check that will not be paid by me. I have already given the necessary money to my attorney."

IGNORED BANK NOTICES

Lieutenant Thomas N. Trainor of the retail store squad said the girl had been cashing checks in her own name for several months with part of the proceeds taken in merchandise and the remainder in cash.

Complaints regarding the checks

ONLY 4 LOST IN MYSTERY DISASTER

Baltimore, July 30 (Ap)—Capt. Charles O. Brooks, master of the charred and smoking hulk which was the Bay liner City of Baltimore, suggested today that sabotage might account for the "amazing" spread of the fire which killed two, injured six, and left two missing.

Firmen began today to pump out the steel hull of the beached liner in a search for bodies and clues to the origin of the fire.

Navy planes ordered out to search nearby waters for bodies of the missing two of the 93 aboard were noticed.

Four crew members and two passengers of the 89 known survivors received hospital treatment. None of them was seriously hurt.

The dead:

J. F. Polikoff, passenger, Aiken, S. C., lawyer.

Charles Wheelton, Crisfield, Md., crew member.

The missing:

R. Paige, passenger, address unknown.

Cy Bayside, an oiler.

THE INJURED

Second Officer Earnest Horsely, burned hands suffered when he slid down a rope to water.

"I wouldn't even think of sabotage as a theory under ordinary circumstances, but the idea has been running through my head," Captain Brooks said.

Green Splits With AFL Aids, Backs Wage Bill

Washington, July 30 (AP)—William Green clarified the American Federation of Labor's attitude toward the administration's wage-hour bill today in a letter urging the Senate to pass the measure instead of sending it back to committee.

Some federation officials had sought to sidetrack the measure. John P. Frey, president of the Federation's metal trades department, said he had asked a number of Senators to delay its consideration until next year.

Green's letter was received shortly after a non-partisan House bloc organized to hold Congress in session until the wage-hour legislation is passed.

The Green letter, addressed to Senator Black (D.) of Alabama, chairman of the Senate labor committee, was expected by the measure's proponents to counteract the sidetracking movement.

Senator McCarren (D.) of Nevada disclosed Green had written the letter to Black, but he said Black had not yet received it.

McCarren said the letter, read to him over the telephone, asserted that while the bill was not entirely satisfactory to labor, the Federation wanted it passed rather than recommitted, in the hope that

Washington Woman Tells of Slugging

Mrs. Elizabeth J. Williams, attractive 25-year-old Washington society matron, attended by a nurse, appeared before the Suffolk County Grand Jury today, to tell the story of the brutal attack she suffered at the hands of gem-thieves when robbed of $6000 in jewels at Hotel Statler.

On her way to the grand jury room she warded off inquiring reporters by displaying the same fighting spirit that enabled her to battle off the four gem thieves who lured her into a hotel at the time of the robbery.

In irate tones she said to reporters who tried to question her:

"Will I ever get away from this?"

New York police say that gems and blood-stained clothing were found among the group.

Each of the four men under arrest in New York has long criminal record, police say.

Myer Lembersky of Crown street, Brooklyn, N. Y., Jack Davenport of the Bronx, Frederick Mangieri of Brooklyn and Murray Cohen of Brooklyn are the men held in the metropolis.

A mysterious "Maurice," who frequents night clubs and cocktail lounges in Boston and New York, is being sought. He is alleged to be the "spotter," "finger man" and "lure."

SPAIN POISON PLOT DOOMS 2

Hendaye, France - Spanish Frontier, July 30 (AP)—Spanish insurgent authorities announced today that a military court at Pamplona had quickly condemned to death two Frenchmen charged with plotting to spread disease over insurgent territory.

However, General Francisco Franco was reported to have ordered sentence stayed until an international commission could review alleged evidence of an international plot to loose typhoid and sleeping sickness germs behind insurgent lines.

France charged the scheme was organized in London and involved Englishmen, Frenchmen and Spaniards, some in high positions. The two on trial before a military court, Louis Chabrat and Jean Beuglenec, were arrested in Fuentarabia. They were alleged to have smuggled disease germs across the border.

Shelling of Tientsin Renewed by Japanese

Tientsin, July 30 (AP)—Japanese artillery and airplanes pounded Chinese sections of battered Tientsin with shells and bombs tonight in a renewal of the attack which devastated a large area of the Chinese city yesterday.

The assault followed what Japanese said was a Chinese counter-attack.

Chinese and Japanese forces fought with machine guns and rifles along the fringe of the Japanese concession during the afternoon. Then Japanese big guns returned to their destruction of "anti-Japanese" positions in the city.

(Dispatches from Tientsin to Shanghai said more buildings and homes of thousands of refugees were set afire. The messages

Heroism Cheats Flaming Death of Heavy Toll at Sea

Plain in the strained faces of this girl and man, rescued from the blazing S. S. City of Baltimore, is evidence of the horror of their experience. They are Miss Helen Bomba of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Carl Nuber of Baltimore. A boat which rushed to the burning liner's side saved them.

International News Photograph Service

Blackness of night made all the more terrible this scene, as flames roared unchecked from stem to stern of the doomed Chesapeake Bay liner, City of Baltimore. Watchers on the beach could feel the intense heat, braved by rescuers who saved all but four of the ill-fated vessel's passengers and crew. The picture indicates clearly how rapid and extensive was the spread of the flames. Ship's officers marvelled that the loss of life was not greater.

Daylight today found still standing by the blazing hulk of the Chesapeake Bay liner City of Baltimore vessels which joined in the rescue of all but four of the ill-fated steamship's passengers and crew. The picture, flashed exclusively to the Boston Evening American by International News Soundphoto, shows a fire-boat continuing to play its hose lines on the beached and flame-swept liner. Beyond, in deeper water, are coast guard cutters and patrol boats, together with other small craft which raced to the scene in time to help save the survivors.

Rescued from the blazing S. S. City of Baltimore, as roaring flames destroyed the passenger vessel in Chesapeake Bay, Mrs. Stella White of Baltimore is greeted with a fervent kiss by her happy husband. Frantic with anxiety, he had stood by helpless until his wife was finally brought safely ashore.

Capt. Brooks

The speed of the flames as they roared through the superstructure of the boat will be one of the chief points of the two-phase inquiry duly launched here.

A special federal inquiry board was named in Washington to hold its first of its hearings tomorrow. The company said that it, too, would probe into the causes and results of the fire and a series of minor explosions which passengers said followed the first burst of flames.

Inspectors of the marine inspection and navigation bureau went to the smouldering hull of the ship, still aground on Bodkin Point, for an examination of the blistered steel hull and the twisted mass of beams which had supported the wooden deckhouses.

FLAMES FROM HOLDS

Flames, passengers said, roared from the lower holds, and within three minutes after the first alarm, had wrapped two-thirds of the boat in fire.

The passengers, most of whom were at dinner, scurried to the rails, many still clutching their napkins. Others tumbled from staterooms. The crew surged up from the hold.

HEAT DRIVES BOATS BACK

Two miles away, resort residents —who had been sitting on their lawns a moment before talking about the mildness of the night— rushed down to the water's edge aghast at the horror before them.

Screams could be heard ashore above the roar of the flames. Passengers begged for help as those in the smaller boats were driven back by the fierce heat.

An unidentified man picked up a rope, tied one end to the railing and pitched the other overboard. The flames swirled closer. Some grasped the rope and slid down to the water.

SAYS LIFEBOATS DELAYED

Mrs. William Klecka, wife of United States Marshall August Klecka, of Bayside, who first notified authorities of the disaster, said lifeboats were not lowered from the burning vessel until 15 minutes after the fire broke out.

She said "everybody along the beach started to call 'fire' and she ran to a telephone to tell the operators to call a fireboat, the coast guard and volunteer firemen.

"When I returned to the beach," she said, "no lifeboats had been lowered. It was fully 15 minutes after I first saw the fire that any lifeboat was lowered."

Captain Richard B. Wysong of the pilot boat William D. Sanner, which aided in rescue work, said several of the City of Baltimore's lifeboats had been lowered when the Sanner reached the scene.

The ship, witnesses said, after the first alarm, turned and headed for the shallow water of the west shore.

Luther Boote of Baltimore, fishing nearby, said he and five companions were the first rescuers on the scene.

"We yelled to the people to jump," he said, "but they seemed too hysterical to pay any attention. They were scrambling around the railings and screaming."

A few minutes later and it was jump or face the flames. Many nervously pulled themselves to the top rail and let go. Others got over the railing and clung there until the heat forced them to drop.

As the passengers jumped, the small boats plied about, picking them up.

Max Stein, a Baltimore fruit broker, said that when he jumped into the water a Negro, swimming without a life preserver, tore his preserver from him and swam away. Stein said he swam until dragged from the water.

L. S. Haward of Newport News, Va., said he and Captain Charles O. Brooks, the ship's veteran master, were the last to leave the ship.

"I was eating dinner," he said, "when I heard the call of fire. I went outside and stayed with the captain until the deck was empty.

"He and I then jumped into the water."

"I was looking my dog when the first alarm rang. I ran on deck and saw fire in the staterooms. In about five minutes the whole boat was on fire."

She and dozens of others pushed their way to the bow of the liner.

"The fire," she gasped to rescuers, "was coming toward us and burning our faces."

An unidentified man—calm in the disaster—seized a rope, tied it to the rail and hurled it overboard. Those who dared slid down it to water about 50 feet below.

With the flames licking near them, others leaped.

The pilot boat William Sanner, slowly churning about with lights playing over the water which was becoming rougher with a rising breeze, picked up about 60.

The Love Point ferry took 12, and other boats smaller numbers. Safe ashore, James Johnson, 21, Negro kitchen helper, told of discovering the fire.

He said he saw smoke curling from the forward section of the freight deck.

"I yelled to the other fellows," he said, "and we got some buckets and water."

Rescuers said they were amazed at the resourcefulness of the passengers. Though hysteria gripped many as the flames roared near them, they strapped lifebelts about themselves and moved to the rail.

The City of Baltimore was built in 1911 and had a length of 297.5 feet. It was of 2379 gross tons and with the City of Norfolk, a sister ship, plied between Baltimore and Norfolk carrying passengers and cargo.

4 Burned by Fire in Newburyport

Newburyport, July 30—Four persons were burned when a fire, caused by an explosion, swept through the rear of the Central fire station in Market square here today.

The explosion occurred in a ground floor kitchen, where the firemen cook their meals, when gasoline being used to exterminate insects exploded while a gas stove was being connected.

Joseph Woodman, an electricians' helper, on a Works Progress Administration project of alterations, was seriously burned about the hands and legs. He was taken to the Anna Jaques Memorial Hospital.

The other victims were:

Acting Fire Chief John A. Doyle, burns on his hands.

John H. Lawrence, a fireman, burns about the head.

Winthrop Woman Plunges 40 Feet

A 35-year-old Winthrop mother was seriously injured today when she plunged 40 feet from the rear porch of her third-story apartment.

The woman, Mrs. Sarah Skolnick of Beach road, Winthrop, mother of two children, was shaking a mop while leaning against the railing, which suddenly gave way.

She landed on her back and was knocked unconscious. A bicycle wheel, which was on the porch, fell after her and struck her on a leg.

Mrs. Skolnick was taken to Winthrop Community hospital, where she was found suffering from internal injuries.

EARNING LIVING FROM 'OL DEVIL SEA

She discovered that an old Irish industry thrives on Scituate shores. Her story about it and 12-year-old Miriam Flynn is exclusive.

Lee Colombo, in real life Mrs. John F. Crimmins, wins a $50 prize and a chance to experience the thrills of a real reporter's life. Here is her story:

By LEE COLOMBO
(Of 166 Independence avenue, Quincy)

On no less an exclusive section than the Cliffs in Scituate, a "large" bit of old Irish industry thrives.

Primitive, picturesque and unmolested by large corporation concerns, its battered old shanties look over the limitless blue waters, in sharp contrast to regal summer estates that house many socially prominent residents.

But the charm of it lies in the "Moss Queen," who, strangely enough, bears a proud Irish ancestry and bears the name of Flynn.

Miriam Flynn, to me and you, Mimi to her mother!

Here is a big house on the cliff, and she's reached the knowing age of 12; but mossing harbors no fears for her, and though she is the only girl mosser on the Cliffs, she holds her own with the best of veterans, and all the oldsters hold her high in esteem for her pluck and honesty.

A PRETTY SIGHT

You are apt to see her at any time she is faded California blue shorts and high rubber boots, her shining blonde hair blowing in the summer breeze, pulling her treasured Irish moss from the dangerous rocks where it collects.

What a contrast she is to the mossers of 50 years ago, women who, in red petticoats, rubber boots and buckets in hand, helped their mossing husbands and won for themselves the title of "The Red Petticoat Brigade."

Sometimes she sets forth in her small rowboat, with a rake peculiar to the industry, known as a moss rake. With its 20-foot handle, she can travel into deep waters and get her bounty, which is farther out, in unmolested waters, and gather in three times as much.

It's no easy task—this tugging at moss—you pull and you pull!—you need both hands—and your rake may become caught in the sea-weed, which might result in a spill! And you must be careful and not pick the new growth, because periwinkles live in the stuff in its infancy and make it rusty.

It's scarce to be found in the whole mossing section—from Nantucket to Brant Rock, and that puts the price up.

With precision and care, Mimi spreads out her moss, now the color of faded mahogany. Days of sun will bleach it out, and within a week she will have to dump it all into a great, large tub and wash it with salt water pumped from the ocean to the chief mossing shack. Then back it goes upon the beach again, to dry a lovely amber color.

CARE NEEDED

When the days are hot the moss has to be sprinkled with salt water to prevent its breaking up. And, should it rain, then the work must be started all over again, for rain water left on it would be fatal—it spoils a deep black.

This curing process takes about two weeks, and one has to be careful—one washing too many and the moss is a total loss.

There's always a ready and waiting market, with the moss selling from 10 cents a pound down to four, depending upon the quality. The Moss Queen's harvest always pays the top price, because she picks it well and cures it to perfection.

When the 72-year-old mosser buys from her, he weighs it carefully. Woe to the individual who is caught tucking sticks or heavy substance into the bag for added weight!

It is then piled into great burlap bags, 200 to 500 pounds in weight, resembling haystack mounds on the top (this allows the bales to hold more)—and then it travels to all parts of the world—for 450 uses!

The ale you are sipping this minute might have some of Miriam's moss in it, for no beer or ale is good without it—therefore breweries must have it.

IN OTHER PRODUCTS

Every hand lotion has it in its formula; cosmetics use it because it benefits the skin—gelatine has it—it is rich in iodine and is found in that product, and you'll find it in all medicines.

It is a precious thing, and a beautiful one, too. A delicate and lacey under-the-sea plant—you'd expect it to inspire designers, but never to have such sturdy uses!

Miriam is mossing, because she believes in working from the bottom up. With a scientific mind, she is preparing for a future; ten years to grow up in—a college degree for a background, and her understanding parents to guide her, you may well expect Miriam Flynn, the Irish Moss Queen, to be heading a cosmetic house of international fame.

Here's 12-year-old Miriam Flynn, Scituate "moss queen." She's just about to bring ashore a boatload of the so-called Irish moss she gathers from the sea-swept rocks along the ocean front near her home. An old-world industry, transferred here to modern-day New England, is enabling her to earn money to help pay her way through school and later college. Alert and news-conscious Mrs. John F. Crimmins, an amateur reporter, "wrote up" Miriam Flynn in an EXCLUSIVE story for today's Boston Evening American, thus winning a $50 prize.

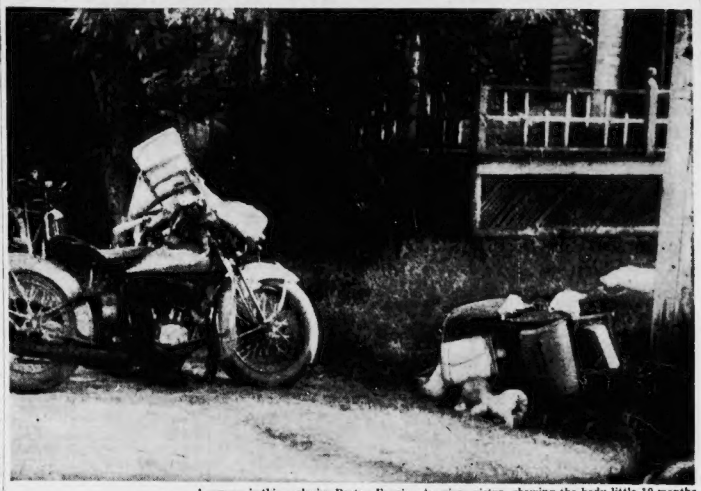
Loses 70 Pounds, Balks at Hospital

Fall River, July 30—Her weight cut from 160 to 90 as the result of a throat ailment of five months, Mrs. Mary Curtis, 39, mother of four children, still refused to go to a hospital today for treatment.

Her physician said she has repeatedly declined to undergo hospital treatment because it means leaving her children. Living on a small liquid diet, she has become so weak she can no longer do housework.

TRAGEDY ON THE HIGHWAY



EXCLUSIVE

Child Legally Wed Must Stand Trial as Delinquent

St. Paul, July 30 (AP)—The state supreme court ruled today the marriage of 12-year-old Virginia Dermer to Ernest B. Johnson, of Mankato, Minn., did not remove her from jurisdiction of the juvenile court. Thus she must stand trial on a charge of being a neglected and delinquent child.

The Minnesota "child-marriage" case attracted wide attention when Johnson, 27, divorced from one wife and the father of five children, went to Estherville, Iowa, last March, and married the child in the presence of her mother.

"We shall assume her marriage to be valid until annulled," the opinion said.

The court held that the sole question it must decide was whether the marriage of the child removed her from the jurisdiction of the juvenile court.

State-Wide Hunt For Lynn Boy, 4

Witnesses said the man, tall and blond, seized George and bundled him into the car, in which a woman was waiting. At present there is court litigation over custody of the boy, according to his father, Francis Bisbee. His estranged wife, Mrs. Violette Bisbee, now lives in Carmi, Ill., the father said.

SHE WINS, $50 PRIZE

Man's Shrinking Ends

SAYS OPERATION SAVED LIFE

Minneapolis, July 30 (AP)—Hans Nelson, who shrank ten inches in height in five years, today credited a gland operation with saving his life and putting him "on top of the world."

He's gaining strength, he said, eating "anything," taking automobile trips and enjoying life. He's pleased also to know his case has aided others so afflicted.

Two years ago surgeons removed half of his parathyroid glands in an effort to stop the de-calcification of his bones that reduced his stature. He had been shrinking for 15 years until he was a stooped man of five feet.

Nelson still is five feet tall, but said he was growing stronger "every day" and looking forward to the time when he will be even more active.

"As far as my life was concerned," Nelson said of his operation, "I figured I was gone. I made a try, though, and I'm glad of it. This has been the most wonderful summer since I have been sick."

Winchester Coach Quits for New Job

Wendell Mansfield, athletic director and coach at Winchester High School for the past 12 years, has resigned.

Mansfield, a former Springfield College athlete, will return to his alma mater to assist Alonzo Stagg's son, who was appointed head football coach early this week.

Winchester High has had the most outstanding team in the Middlesex and Mystic Valley leagues during Mansfield's tenure. It captured the title four years, finishing in a tie for the crown two years.

Dies of Stab After 15 Years

He was stabbed in the back during quarrel, the wound healed and he forgot the episode.

A few days ago when pain developed he went to the hospital, where X-rays disclosed a piece of the knife blade wedged between two vertebrae. He died after physicians operated to remove it.

Gloucester Youth Held in Riot Case

Gloucester, July 30—Peter Frontiero, 22, of Commercial street, was held in $1500 for the grand jury in district court here today on a charge of attempted murder of a policeman by allegedly keeping the officer's head under water.

He was arrested in connection with a riot in Commercial street on July 6.

Officer Marshall R. McDonald testified that when he went to arrest Frontiero, the latter pushed him off the pier into the harbor.

Lammot du Pont In U. S. Tax Deal

Washington, July 30 (INS)—In a compromise, Lammot du Pont, Delaware capitalist, has agreed to an income tax deficiency of $27,787 on 1930 income, it was disclosed today by the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals.

At the same time, internal revenue officials agreed to drop a $28,579 deficiency assessment lodged against du Pont for 1931 income.

Motorcyclist Held in Death of Baby; Mother, Girl Hurt

Seabrook, N. H., July 30—Walter Dellville of Gonic, whose motorcycle killed a baby, seriously injured its young mother and another girl, was held in Portsmouth county jail today pending his appearance at a night session of district court.

He was unable to provide the $500 bail set for a charge of operating recklessly and causing the death of a person.

The baby victim was 10-months-old Charlene Hager, whose skull was fractured when she was hurled out of her carriage. The mother, Mrs. Dorothy Shaw Hager, suffered a fractured ankle, several broken ribs and lacerations of the face and head.

Miss Estelle Grenier, 18, of East Rochester, who was riding on a rear seat of Dellville's motorcycle, had her right shoulder fractured. The women are at Exeter Hospital. Police said that Dellville was speeding to pass an automobile on Lafayette highway, when it made a left turn.

The motorcycle went out of control as Dellville swung it around, they said, and the machine crashed headlong into the mother and the baby in the carriage.

DRIVE TO PLUG TAX LOOPHOLES HITS SNAG

Washington, July 30 (INS)—Scope of the Senate-House tax committee's program for closing tax loopholes may be narrowed by legal and practical obstacles, it was indicated by members today.

A series of Supreme Court decisions may be necessary to point the path to legislation closing all avenues of escape from Federal taxation sought by the administration.

The committee was slated to complete its tentative agreement on major provisions of the proposed bill today and submit them to drafting experts to be translated into bill form.

HOPE $200,000,000 GAIN

High administration officials hope to add $200,000,000 a year to revenues through closing of loopholes.

Tentative provisions were said to include:

1—Increasing the tax rate upon both alien individuals and alien corporations having income from American sources. The rate may be boosted from 10 to 30 per cent, with rich foreigners being required also to file income tax returns.

2—An absolute ban upon use of foreign insurance companies, without assets, as a means of avoiding taxes.

YACHT LOOPHOLE BAN

4—A ban on deductions through incorporation of yachts, country estates or "hobby farms," with racing stables generally being classed as businesses.

5. Elimination of $1000 exemption allowed in reporting income from trusts, which would materially affect only cases where a score or more trusts have been created.

A possibility that drastic legislation on foreigner's American earnings might cause withdrawal of foreign capital suddenly, and thus injure business, admittedly troubled some members. High Treasury officials were said to be convinced that the country would not be injured.

While House leaders said that they hoped to pass an anti-loophole bill before Congress adjourns many of the questions raised by the Treasury in the tax investigation may be shunted over for consideration next winter.

'Lucky' Thief With $47,000 in Gems Sought in Woods

Seal Harbor, Me., July 30—Private detectives and state police centered a search in the woods and neighboring towns today for a jewel thief, believed a rank amateur, whose lucky coup at the palatial hillside home of Captain and Mrs. J. J. O'Brien netted $47,000 in precious gems.

The theft was not one carefully planned, or the work of professional jewel thieves, police believe, but only the finding of a vagrant who broke into the O'Brien summer home while the family was away.

Fingerprints of a suspect, recently arrested on the Edsel Ford estate nearby and now serving a sentence at Ellsworth, were under scrutiny here today.

Among the rare gems were a $37,500 necklace of 93 graduated pearls with a diamond snap clasp; a diamond bow knot brooch, an emerald-cut diamond solitaire with platinum mounting, valued at $8000, and a platinum diamond wrist watch, valued at $100.

R. I. GRAND JURY ACTION HINTED IN SLAYING

Providence, July 30—Possibility that the grand jury may be called to consider the facts unearthed in the murder of Dr. George W. Webster, prominent obstetrician, loomed today as the inquest into his slaying resumed.

This action was indicated by the plan of John A. Nolan, third assistant attorney-general, to visit the death scene, the exclusive home where Dr. Webster's slayer lay in wait and sent two steel-jacketed bullets into his body. Coroner Conrad K. Strauss was to accompany Nolan.

It was thought the grand jury might enter the case because of the veil of secrecy thrown about the mysterious murder by police, who have been charged with "covering up" information in connection with their investigation.

At the same time, Coroner Strauss made it clear that persons who testify at future sessions of the inquest will be accorded the utmost consideration.

Their identities will be kept secret if they so desire, he said, and their testimony need not necessarily be given at his office. If they wish, he will visit their homes to hear their stories, the coroner said.

Meanwhile, residents of the exclusive section where the murder took place, fearful of a maniac at large, were afforded additional police protection by the enlargement of the Sessions street station, only two blocks from Dr. Webster's home.

Lieutenant John D. Fox, famed for his activities against prohibition "hi-jackers," and Sergeant Walter T. P. Day, recently on duty in the public schools, were assigned to the station to bolster up the personnel.

Melbourne, Australia, July 30 (AP)—Mrs. Annie Houston, a claimant to the estimated $25,000,000 estate left by the late Lady Houston in England, died here today.

Mrs. Houston was an elderly woman in poor circumstances. She advanced her claim only three days ago.

Lady Houston, who died last December, had willed her estate to Miss Juliana Hoare, who died before she did.

Billerica Fugitive To Return to Jail

Massachusetts authorities today made arrangements to return to this state Francis J. Chaudoit, an escaped prisoner from the Billerica jail, now under arrest in Grandy, Conn.

Chaudoit was identified by fingerprints sent to the Bureau of Identification. He fled the Massachusetts institution June 7, 1936, while serving two and a half years for attacking a girl.

He was arrested in Connecticut for drunkenness and assault. He faces a 60-day term in Grandy.

Chancellor Byrne Quits N. Y. Regents

New York, July 30 (AP)—Dr. James Byrne, chancellor of the New York state board of regents, today announced his resignation, effective immediately, "because of health and personal affairs."

Chancellor Byrne, a graduate of Harvard College in 1877 and of its law school in 1882, practised law in New York City for many years. On several occasions he has been elected to the presidency of the Harvard Law School Association, the Harvard Alumni Association and the Harvard Club of New York.

Lawrence Girl, 13, Burned by Poison

Lawrence, July 30—Punished by her mother for breaking a window in their home, a 13-year-old girl ran into her bedroom today and swallowed a poisonous disinfectant, according to police.

The girl, Rachael Calandusillo of Oak street, Lawrence, was rushed to Lawrence General hospital where she was found suffering from severe burns of the mouth and throat.

Windsors Dance Into Wee Hours

Venice, July 30 (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor "did the Lido" last night—and part of this morning. They returned to their hotel early today after dancing for three hours at a night club, topping off a full day of recreation, their first of a week on this famous beach.

CHARMER AND SNAKE

The snake is a fake, but the charmer is real enough. She's Miss Theo Smith of Albany, N. Y., and this is the costume she's going to wear to the Rockport Artists' ball, Friday, August 13. She calls her wooden snake "Dambella," which is the name, she says, of the green goddess of voodooism.

Rockport Artists Go "Voodoo" for Friday 13th Ball

Rockport, July 30—This artists' town was stirred into enthusiastic preparation today for the 17th annual artists' ball to be held on Friday, August 13.

In keeping with the ill-omened date of the affair, Friday the Thirteenth," the theme of the ball this year will be "voodooism," as practised on the island of Haiti.

Artists' shops were replete with talismans of the weird Negro practice and girls walked about the street with fetishes made from all sorts of queer-shaped articles.

The town hall, scene of the ball, began to assume the aspect of a Haitian jungle as tropic plants were brought in for decoration and plans to make the event authentic went ahead at increased tempo.

The piece de resistance will be the sacrifice of a white girl on the "voodoo" altar. All guests must be in costume, even the newspapermen covering the ball.

6 BANDITS ROB CARNIVAL PAIR

Another daring holdup in which six armed men seized $300 from a Chicopee carnival proprietor and his wife, proved today that the latest wave of banditry in New England is still unchecked.

Victims were Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. James. Driving along the Ware-Belchertown road with a day's receipts, the couple were startled to see a big, black sedan race up beside their machine.

A pistol barked and a bullet whizzed across the radiator of James' car as one of the six bandits shouted:

"Pull over or you'll get the next one!"

Three men with handkerchiefs over the lower parts of their faces leaped out of the black sedan brandishing guns, James said. They ordered James and his wife into a rear seat.

They took a money box with $100 in silver and a roll of large bills from James and Mrs. James' handbag.

G-MEN TRACE PAYOFFS TO STATE OFFICIALS

Records of five contracting companies, which have gone into bankruptcy in the past two years, gave federal income tax investigators their first hint of alleged "payoffs" to high State officials in Massachusetts, it was learned today.

It was the information gathered in these proceedings that brought a special corps of Treasury Department experts into Boston to begin the probe that has now embraced more than thirty companies and may hit a score of public officials.

One of these investigators has been in daily attendance at the Finance Commission's inquiry in the Codman Hill Construction Company, in another phase of this probe, it was also learned.

Already, it has been disclosed, the federal check of the books of these thirty-odd firms has covered the past three years.

Scrutiny aims at establishing the identity of persons to whom large amounts were reputedly paid "for legal services and under the title of other "services" which the Treasury investigators believe were illegal . . .

The income tax experts are not interested in these contracting companies as such, because, with one or two exceptions, they are "in the clear" as far as their taxes are concerned, it is said.

Investigation centers on the mysterious persons—believed to be persons holding public office—to whom disbursements were made.

The first "lead" to the existence of this alleged situation came as a result of the procedure of the federal courts and referees in bankruptcy as the five companies mentioned sought reorganization, a reliable source said.

Their latitude is exercised by a bankruptcy referee, and the courts do not approve bankruptcy petitions until every item of assets and liabilities is checked down to the last penny.

During these checks, it was learned, the questioned disbursements were discovered, and the special corps of investigators was assigned here under Special Treasury Agent George A. Lambert.

TIENTSIN AGAIN SHELLED BY JAPANESE

described the Chinese area as desolate, with fires raging unchecked, and corpses and debris littering the streets.

Neutrals who visited Nankai University building said they saw no Chinese troops in the vicinity, but that at sundown the university's scientific library was bombed.

Nankai preparatory schools inside the native city also were bomber.

Japanese increased their precautionary measures late today when they received unconfirmed reports that Chinese reinforcements were advancing from Paoting.

Shells Imperil American Group

Peiping, July 30 (AP)—Heavy artillery firing started suddenly this afternoon southwest of here at Yenching University, refuge for a group of Americans, as China was reported to have ordered her crack central army into action to drive the Japanese army out of North China.

Grave apprehension was felt for the safety of the Americans at the university. The group was believed to number five women and three men, including President J. L. Stuart, who had refused the warning of the American embassy to leave.

"It is my duty to stay," he told diplomatic officials.

Fighting was general once again all about the ancient walls of the Manchu capital. The Japanese army was believed to be engaged in relentless "mopping up" operations against the remnants of the 29th Chinese army, the main body of which now holds positions across the Yungting river to the west.

All communication was severed with Yenching university as the fighting there began. The university is supported by American missions and is one of China's outstanding educational institutions.

Firing was especially heavy west of the city, indicating a major engagement might be in progress. Japanese troops were reported attempting to force the crossing of the Yungting river at Warpingsien and the Marco Polo bridge.

To support the 37th and 132nd divisions of the 29th Army, which are entrenched on the west bank, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, premier and commander-in-chief of the Chinese army, was reported to have ordered up 50,000 highly-trained and well-equipped troops of the central army.

Japanese sources declared they had learned an attack in force had been ordered against their positions around Peiping with the main body of the Chinese army, supported by the Nanking government's modernized air force.

Within Peiping's walls conditions were reasonably orderly with General Chang Tsu-Chung, new head of the Hopeh-Chahar provincial council, organizing an emergency protective committee. Chinese charged this was the first step in setting-up a Japanese-protected state such as Manchukuo.

An estimated 500 Americans are now living as refugees in the embassy quarter, well supplied with food and medical necessities. They are under the protection of United States marines and their morale continued high. No foreigners in the embassy quarter were thought to be in any danger.

Japanese Cabinet In Secret Session

Tokyo, July 30 (AP)—The Japanese cabinet in secret session today reached a decision on a series of "second steps" to be taken in the undeclared war with China over domination of the rich North China provinces.

Immediately after the fateful conference at which only the highest ranking officials were present, Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye hurried to the Imperial Palace to lay the decision before Emperor Hirohito.

The decision made by the ministers was not announced publicly.

All Americans In Tientsin Safe

Washington, July 30 (INS)—All Americans in the Tientsin area are safe.

This was reported today to the War Department by Colonel Joseph A. McAndrews, commander of the 15th Infantry at Tientsin.

McAndrews said his troops were affording every possible protection to the American colony there. He reported the city quiet today, after intermittent fighting during the night.

Peace Rejected in Homestead Strike

Elkins, W. Va., July 30 (AP)—Ninety-eight strikers who quit work on their own homes at the government's 2500-acre, million dollar Tygart homesteads rejected management's peace overtures today.

"We refuse to talk to anyone except higher Resettlement Administration officials," said five directors of the Homesteaders' Co-operative Association, who called the strike three days ago, charging government funds were being wasted.

Celebrate Birthday at 103

Norristville Pa., July 30 (AP)—"Aunt Lucy" Haak, native of Jave N. Y., observed her one hundred and third birthday today. She was married twice. Her second husband died 40 years ago.

Movie Star Becomes a Countess

Virginia Cherrill Is Wed to Earl

London, July 30 (AP)—Love almost at first sight brought a wedding today for Virginia Cherrill, American movie actress, and the ninth Earl of Jersey.

The new countess, 29-year-old former wife of Cary Grant and the blind flower girl of Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights," became Britain's sixteenth stage and screen countess.

Marriage ended the acting career of the Carthage, Ill., girl, who is the first Hollywood star ever to become an English peeress.

"It's a happy married life for, me now," she exclaimed. "It's hard for an actress to be a good housewife but I'm thrilled at the idea of getting married. Who wouldn't be?"

WILL LIVE IN LONDON

The Earl of Jersey—who is also Viscount Grandison, Viscount Villiers and Baron Hoo—said they would live in his London Farm street house because "we cannot afford to live in the family home at Osterley Park."

They met a year ago at a party and the new countess said she fell in love with her husband "not at first sight, but very nearly that."

WED GRANT IN 1934

She was married to Cary Grant, English and Hollywood film star, here in 1934. She was granted a divorce in March of 1935.

The Earl of Jersey was divorced last January from his first wife, Patricia Kenneth Richards of Cootamundra, New South Wales. The decree became absolute 11 days ago. Lady Caroline Child Villiers, their three-year-old daughter, will divide her time between her father and her mother.

Humidity Falls, Mercury Climbs

Humidity and temperatures traded places today, as the sun cleared away early morning fog.

The humidity, 93 per cent at 9 a. m., dropped to 61 per cent at 10, while the mercury rose from 66 to 74 degrees.

Temperatures today will reach the middle 80's, he predicted. Warmest July 30 on record was 98 in 1917 and in 1933, the coldest 52 in 1886.

An early morning chill held for three hours today, as the temperature remained at 64 degrees at 5, 6 and 7 a. m.

Rugg Continues To Gain Steadily

FEAR 23 KILLED IN SHELLING OF SPANISH SHIP

BULLETIN

London, July 30 (AP)—Viscount Cranborne, under-secretary of foreign affairs, disclosed to the House of Commons today Italy had renewed her pledge to Great Britain to respect the territorial integrity of civil war-torn Spain.

Nimes, France, July 30 (AP)—Fear was expressed today that 23 officers and men had perished as a result of the shelling of the Spanish freighter Anduiz-Mendi by an unidentified submarine.

The captain, Obdulio Castel, and 10 of his crew reached shore in a small boat early today but there was no trace of any others of the 34 that constituted the ship's personnel. The Onduiz-Mendi was still aflame from the gunfire.

The skipper said the ship carried no refugees. Previously it had been reported she was transporting a load of refugees from Valencia to Marseilles, France.

The master of the stricken freighter reported two submarines took part in the attack late yesterday in French waters of Le Grau Du Rol, France.

"When they suddenly appeared at the surface I thought they were French," Captain Castel related. But we soon found ourselves with a submarine on each side. One only 30 yards distant machine gunned us as well as firing a heavy gun.

"The first shots disabled our radio. Machine gun bullets swept the deck. We took refuge in the engine room. The firing kept up about 30 minutes. Then the submarines disappeared."

From Spain came reports that two tank steamers were also fired on, and one of them sunk by a submarine.

Parliament Quits After Vital Session

London, July 30 (AP)—Parliament adjourned for the summer today, after a notable session that saw Britain change kings and plunge into the world armament race.

Throughout the session Parliament faced a constant threat of war, endeavoring to keep the Spanish civil conflict from spreading to the rest of Europe. It approved a five-year $7,500,000,000 armament program and dealt with the constitutional crisis created by the abdication.

Pringle, Veteran Mill Man, Dies

East Rochester, N. H., July 30 (AP)—James C. Pringle, 62, active in New England textile circles for 40 years, died suddenly today.

He resigned two years ago from the Cocheco mill where he had been overseer for 20 years.

Damon Runyon

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover has just completed 20 years with the Department of Justice, which is, so the poet sang, "a darned good record for that vicinity."

Mr. Hoover must be pretty good. He has so consolidated his position that the political mowers make a practice of detouring him.

He is head of what the underworld calls "The S a m s" or "Sammers" in old fashioned parlance, the "G-Men." His title is chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which covers a lot of territory nowadays, and which is generally accounted the most formidable enemy of the criminal element in the world.

NO. 1 POLICEMAN

Mr. Hoover is today perhaps America's No. 1 policeman.

He is an affable gentleman of middle years, with a bulldoggish looking countenance. He dresses neatly, and quietly, and talks softly, but if you know your movies, you can easily visualize him as a high class "Sammer." They are that way in the movies, which copies them from real life.

It was Mr. Hoover who invented the "Sams" of the movies, not the movie authors or directors, who merely followed Mr. Hoover's type.

* * *

Mr. Hoover has been accused of a fondness for publicity, which may be true. You can scarcely blame him for that, because it was publicity that brought public attention to the works of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and produced public confidence in it that it raised the "Sams" from a somewhat inconsequential agency to the best known department of the government.

PUBLICITY MADE "SAMS"

It was publicity that made the "Sams" the most feared of all policemen in the big-time underworld, although of course this publicity was based on considerable genuine accomplishment. In a couple of years after they had been given their heads, Mr. Hoover and his "Sams" did a great job of mopping up on the underworlders.

They killed or jailed a raft of leaders and master-minds in crime, and broke up many an organization.

They may have made occasional errors through over-zealousness, and were sometimes bitterly criticized on this score, but the fact remains that they did their job well. So well, that today you rarely hear of the spectacular criminal exploits in kidnapings and robberies that were so common a few years ago.

But, Mr. Hoover himself would be the last person in the country to contend that crime has been exterminated, or even more than slightly abated in the United States.

Indeed, it is Mr. Hoover's clarion tones that are constantly heard over all others, calling upon good citizens to continue the battle against crime. It is Mr. Hoover who is ever sounding the warning that the criminal menace is at our door.

* * *

Mr. Hoover is a great follow for making speeches about this. He makes a good, clear, ringing speech, too. He knows his subject thoroughly, and he is undoubtedly deeply sincere in his warning. He has figures galore on crime and criminals at his finger tips.

EXHAUSTIVE STUDIES

His department makes an exhaustive study of crime in this country, and sums up the results of the study in voluminous documents issued at intervals for public information and education. Mr. Hoover must memorize every detail of these documents.

Mr. Hoover, we think, is the greatest individual warrior against crime that we have in the country. He is always at it, either through the medium of his "Sams" on the field of action, or from the public rostrum. He preaches the doctrine of eternal vigilance against crime.

He has no use for politics and politicians. He attributes much crime in the United States to unholy alliances between criminals and crooked politicians. Letting off blasts against crooked politicians is one of Mr. Hoover's favorite exhausts.

He is pretty sure that but for their political connections a lot of our celebrated criminals could not have gone far, and he is equally sure that but for similar connection, a lot of cities would not have the crime they do today.

'SAMS' UNDERPAID

Mr. Hoover does not get much of a salary for his efforts, and for that matter his "Sams" are quite underpaid, too, in proportion to the risks they incur. But, Mr. Hoover must like his job, as it is said he has refused a number of positions that would have paid him twice as much as he gets from the government. His job likes him, too.

There has been some political gunning for Mr. Hoover in the past, but it is doubtful if any administration would care to lose him.

After all, some measure of the publicity that Mr. Hoover acquires redounds to the credit of the administration if only for having sense enough to keep him.

That you do not get Mr. Hoovers every day is indicated by the fact that they have found only one of him in 20 years.

MAYOR SPURNS FIN. COM. CALL TO PROBE

had prepared for reading at that time will have to be changed as he said the chief executive has been told he would not be given his chance until the whole case was in.

MAYOR WANTS RECORD

"Mayor Mansfield desires to see the whole record of this case and he intends to be here when it is convenient for him, as the Finance Commission counsel agreed," said the assistant corporation counsel.

Thomas J. Flanagan, former accountant and director of the Codman Hill Construction Company, caused a stir by testifying he had copies of the company's income tax returns as late as June 15 this year.

"When you appeared before me for questioning in May, the summons required you to bring in all the records of the company," said Farnum. "Why didn't you bring in those copies?"

"I regarded them as confidential," said Flanagan.

Flanagan reported at the May interview with Farnum that the books and records of the Codman Hill company had been stolen. On July 1 he was fined $500 and jailed for alleged contempt of court for failing to produce them.

HELD TAX RETURNS

Between these two dates, he admitted today, he had the copies of the income tax returns for a couple of weeks and then turned them over, he said, to William J. Driscoll, president of the company. Driscoll is still in jail for failing to produce the books and records, his claim being all were stolen.

"I had the copies but turned them over to Mr. Driscoll when I resigned on June 15," said Flanagan.

According to members of the Finance Commission, the witness' statement may be reported to Judge Harold P. Williams of Superior Court, who jailed, and later released, Flanagan.

In questioning the accountant about the income tax returns, Farnum indicated he was trying to trace the disposition of Codman Hill income. He stated that the company had received from the city $411,000 for work done during the last three years. When the hearing started, Farnum had promised to show who shared in the profits.

"Can you help account for that $411,000 after its receipt by the company?" he asked Flanagan, who replied: "A large part of it was used to run the business."

Flanagan was also questioned as to what he did with a check for $5000 which he said he received from Driscoll last March for extra services over the course of several years, his previous remuneration having been $500 a year or less.

Farnum accused him of having changed his story from the testimony he gave yesterday. Flannagan complained he had been "shut off" by Farnum.

"Isn't it a fact that every time you've been trapped in a miserable lie you've claimed that you have been shut off?" Farnum fired back.

Attorney James H. Brennan, counsel for Flannagan, leaped to his feet and yelled:

"I object. He isn't lying!"

REPHRASES QUESTION

Farnum glared at Brennan, but at a signal from Chairman David Lasker, walked over to Lasker's desk. After a minute's conference he turned and rephrased his question.

"Every time you've been trapped with the facts in the case, Mr. Flannagan," he said, "you've always resorted to the explanation that I shut you off?"

"No sir," said Flannagan. "I've never been trapped. I'm trying to tell the truth."

"I asked you what you did with that $3000 and you cited that you loaned $1000 to your brother and gave your wife $2000, thereby accounting for $1900."

"You didn't let me finish yesterday," Flannagan retorted. "Instead of accounting for $1900 as you did yesterday, you're now accounting for only $1000," the special attorney went on.

Flannagan did not reply directly, but addressed himself to Chairman Lasker.

"I loaned my brother $1000," he said." I deposited $400 in the Suffolk bank. I bought stock with $350. I paid some bills. I had $900 left. At the end of May, my brother repaid the $1000 and I had about $1900.

"In the middle of June Driscoll asked me if I had any extra cash and asked me to loan him $1000. I did. Before I went to jail (for contempt of court) I gave my wife $900 and she deposited it in her account."

Farnum burst out:

"You never said before Judge Williams (in the hearing that resulted in the contempt sentence) that you loaned your brother $1000."

"Nobody asked me," was Flannagan's reply.

Farnum wanted to know if Flannagan didn't think that withdrawals of $7900 from the Codman Hill account on April 13, and of $18,600 on April 14, were efforts to get the cash "out of the way" before the investigation opened.

Flannagan replied that he didn't know.

600 CIO Workers Sit In Sugar Plant

Edgewater, N. J., July 30 (AP)—Six hundred CIO workmen started a sit-down strike today in the National Refining Company of America.

Joseph Kvilesz, vice-president of the local United Sugar Workers Union, said they struck because the company refused after three months' negotiations to grant demands for a 20 per cent wage increase and a 40-hour week.

How would your nerves stand up to two hours of this?

AQUAPLANE EXPERT. Miss Gloria Wheeden is a typical American outdoor girl. "Yes, I smoke," she says. "Like all my crowd, I enjoy Camels—especially at mealtimes. I give my appetite full rein—smoke Camels—and enjoy a sense of well-being."

"WHEN I'M TIRED after a match or need extra energy, Camels give me an invigorating 'lift' in energy," says Joanna de Tuscan, U. S. Women's Foils Champion. "Camels are so mild and delicate I smoke often, but Camels do not make my throt rough or harsh."

As the Miami, Florida, "Herald" said of Erl Roman's titanic struggle with the big fish (above): "The battle was tough. Erl had his hands full staying in the fishing chair." But a sporting spirit and healthy nerves kept Roman going. After a 2-hour fight, he landed the second-largest blue marlin ever taken on rod and reel. Mr. Roman, a game angler, considers Camel the preferable cigarette for steady smoking. "Healthy nerves are necessary for keeping on top of things. Camels don't get on my nerves," Erl says. Above, right, Mr. Roman enjoys good digestion and a Camel after his tense fight. "I make it a point," he says, "to smoke Camels with my meals and after 'for digestion's sake.'"

Smooth Blending of Costly Tobaccos. Camels are made from costlier tobaccos, in a matchless blend. A mild, fine-flavored cigarette for steady smoking that does not rasp the throat or upset the nerves.

FOREST RANGER has smoked Camels for 24 years. "If it weren't for Camel's mildness, I couldn't enjoy smoking so much," declares Clarence E. Dare. Mr. Dare likes Camels after his favorite meal—thick, juicy steak and apple pie. "Camels smooth things out for my digestion," he says.

Big Shakeup Seen As 14 Troopers Are Shifted

The first move in what appears to be a drastic shakeup of the State police force today saw 14 troopers attached to the West Bridgewater barracks and sub-stations on the South Shore in new posts.

Troopers George Grady, Wilbur Shea and Robert E. McCarthy were transferred from West Bridgewater to Norwell, Rehoboth and Norwell, respectively; Troopers Thomas J. Higginson and Theodore J. Shimkus, from Norwell to Rehoboth; and John D. R. McLean from Norwell to Yarmouth.

Troopers James V. Grant and John R. Tuhn were moved from Yarmouth to Norwell and West Bridgewater, respectively; E. B. Thompson and James P. Brennan from Wareham to West Bridgewater; Stephen D. Martin from Wareham to Norwell.

COMPROMISE SEEN ON NEW SUGAR BILL

Washington, July 30 (US)—A compromise may be reached on sugar control legislation, it was indicated today following a White House conference.

A congressional group conferred with President Roosevelt on the administration-opposed Jones-O'Mahoney bill, after which Senator O'Mahoney (D.) of Wyoming said: "Things are moving."

The conferees announced they would meet later with representatives of State, Interior and Agriculture departments in an effort to win their support.

The three departments, together with the President, have opposed the bill because it would put sugar imports from Hawaii, Cuba and Puerto Rico on a quota basis.

Following the White House conference Senator Adams (D.) of Colorado, predicted there will be a vote on the bill at this session, while Rep. Marvin Jones of Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said:

"We are trying to work out an amicable solution and we are hopeful it can be done."

The Jones-O'Mahoney bill is designed to replace the Jones-Costigan Act which expires December 31. The state department has objected to the provisions affecting Cuba on the ground that it would violate the reciprocal trade agreement with that country.

W. B. Fitzgerald Held for Crash

William B. Fitzgerald, 32, of Ivy street, Boston, son of W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Suffolk register of deeds, was arrested today by Metropolitan district police at Nantasket on a charge of drunkenness and drunken driving, following an accident at Nantasket.

Free State Fights Outlawed 'Army'

Dublin, Irish Free State July 30 (INS)—Irish Free State authorities will launch a new drive against the outlawed Republican Army, it was understood today, as a result of Wednesday's bombings that marred the state visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth to Ulster.

A special political branch of the police will be increased, it was reported, and more money will be devoted to secret service work.

It was considered probable the Irish Free State forces would cooperate with authorities in Northern Ireland.

'Whipping Barrel' for Boys Lauded by Pastor, Mayor

Powhatan, O., July 30 (AP) — A pastor and two public officials endorsed today Marshal Edward Carpenter's five-year-old method of public square whipping for youthful delinquents.

Carpenter's system of bending a lad over a barrel and applying a strap in plain sight of any of this village's 2500 inhabitants who care to look drew from the Rev. Vernon C. Tyree of the St. Clairsville Methodist Church the comment that the marshal's method was a "revival of the old whipping post, and in some cases a revival of this method would do a community a great good. In some cases I wouldn't mind administering the lash myself."

And from Mayor John Goodbue, Jr., came:

"What Carpenter does is his business. I don't interfere either in or with the method and have had no complaints about it from citizens. But I'll say this, we've had a peaceable community for some time now."

Said Probate Judge Harcy A. Albright:

"The matter has not been brought officially to my attention, but I know this, that juvenile delinquency in Powhatan has fallen off nearly 90 per cent ever what it was before Carpenter's reported 'barrel justice' went into effect."

Forced Feeding In Home Charged

West Haven, Conn., July 30 (INS)—Accused by Albert Maiselli, 12, inmate of the New Haven County Home, of forcing food he had refused to eat down his throat after being spanked for half an hour by a home employe allegedly acting under her orders, Mrs. Esther Wolfe, home superintendent, was under arrest today, charged with cruelty.

18 Hurt in Chicago Bus-Trolley Crash

Chicago, July 29 (US)—Eighteen persons were injured and several others badly shaken in a triple crash between a sight-seeing bus, a street car and an automobile.

Panic spread among the passengers of bus and street car. Men and women screamed and fought to get out of the two vehicles. Most of the injured who were treated at hospitals were cut by flying glass.

NEW ENGLAND ONCE AGAIN goes down to the sea in ships

THE days of New England's clipper ships may have long since been numbered. Yet this year New England's pleasure fleet will attain peak proportions for all time by the launching from Yankee boatyards alone of new craft with a value in excess of $5,500,000. Foremost among these is the Bath-built America's Cup defender Ranger.

To our seacoast towns the revenue from migrating yachtsmen is a welcome source of income. It will help to swell the total New England receipts from recreational activities, which the New England Council estimates will exceed $450,000,000 in 1937. Indeed, New England's recreational business now stands second in dollar volume among all its industries.

When you see the shimmer of a mainsail against the blue, remember the part that yachting plays in maintaining New England as the nation's great playground.

Emergency Spending Need Past

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The need for government emergency spending has passed in the opinion of the First National Bank of Boston and it is to be hoped that Congress will find new strength in the collapse of the court plan and reassert its own independence as a separate branch of government and resume control of the purse strings of the nation.

The current New England Letter published by the bank then goes on to list the spendings by bureaucrats under executive control in the year just ended as over 4000 million dollars. It is further noted that such expenditures have gotten out of hand under the guise of relief and recovery and that as the latter has progressed they have increased instead of decreased.

In recent years the federal government has run two budgets and the Letter calls attention to the fact a number of items formerly listed for relief and recovery have been transferred to the ordinary budget. Thus the depression has resulted in permanent additions to the cost of government. Additions, incidentally, that were previously non-existent or recognized as the responsibilities of states and local governments.

* * *

The legislative mill is grinding its grist in usual desultory fashion. Promises of early adjournment following the defeat of the plan to enlarge the Supreme Court are largely forgotten as administrative leaders map a heavy legislative program. The slogan of "home by mid-August" is giving way to "by Labor Day" at the latest. Business and the markets, it seems, will do well to count on news from the capital of major importance for months to come. Principal bill, insofar as market effect is concerned, is the Wages and Hours measure.

* * *

Latest reports are that the American Federation of Labor is against an 8 hour week on the wage bill, thus giving strong impetus to the move to recommit it or kill it altogether. But such reports must be taken with a grain of salt as the human desire of Congress to speedily wind up its affairs and get home makes it fertile ground for false rumors.

* * *

The stock market has struck a nice balance between supply and demand and it is likely that though efforts of both buyers and sellers would be stalemated for the present. It is worth while for the fact the good second quarter reports have been pretty well cleaned up and that there is from industry itself is of the usual colorless Summer type one could look for and probably find an excuse for looking for higher prices. But the bull arguments of a few weeks ago are rather thoroughly used up and about the only source of cheer is found in forecasts of good post Labor Day trade.

* * *

The rails as a group are moving sidewise in a baffling manner. Whether or not their action be speaks confusion over the outcome of current wage negotiations is hard to say. We think so and expect that once this disturbing item is disposed of we can look for a definite break out of the current trading range. . . .

Final 1937 results may find the company turned out 75,000 units . . . Miami Copper is expected to earn $2 per share for 1937 . . . Fairbanks Morse may show $5 per share for this year . . . Baltimore & Ohio earnings for July may be poor in view of the fact carloadings in the first three weeks of the month were only about 2 per cent above the same period last year.

STOCKS Swing UPWARD

TRADING DULL

New York, July 30—Stock market leaders swung upward today in the wake of steels, and gains of fractions to 2 or more points were well distributed in a dull market.

Touching off the recovery was Bethlehem's announcement after the close yesterday of the best quarter in 7 years and a hoisted dividend.

Bonds and commodities failed to develop definite trends and foreign currencies were quiet.

Well up most of the time were Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, National Steel, American Metal, Wheeling Steel, Chrysler, J. I. Case, Deere, International Harvester, Electric Power & Light, Nortl American, American & Foreign Power, Anaconda, Kennecott, National Lead, Tidewater Oil, Pure Oil, Socony Vacuum, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Simmons, Flintkote, Celanese and Childs Co.

Doing little either way were General Motors, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Western Union, American Can, Standard Oil of N. J., N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Consolidated Edison and American Water Works.

Yellow Truck suffered a setback of nearly 2 before receiving support. The company reported a substantial downturn in net earnings for the first six months due to higher operating expenses.

CURRENT TOPICS

Those watching merchandising activities for market clues found a hopeful note in the week-end survey of Dun & Bradstreet.

While some lines dragged, the report said, dollar sales for the week went ahead 3 to 7 per cent from the preceding period. Gains over last year were shortened, it some instances, it was added, but "summer merchandising moved with a celerity unmatched in years."

Emphasis was placed on industrial operations which "demonstrated surprising summer strength as customary seasonal recessions were further postponed in many divisions."

Sterling and the French franc were unchanged at the start of foreign exchange transactions, the former at $4.97⅞ and the latter at 3.75 cents.

Much Financing Postponed Due to Rates Increase

Washington, July 30 (INS)—A slight increase in interest rates during the first six months of this year caused postponement of considerable corporation financing, SEC reports revealed today.

For the first half of 1937, registration statements covering securities with gross proceeds of $2,286,506,000 became effective, a decline of nearly $400,000,000 under the volume of the January-June period a year ago.

The commission said the less favorable capital market conditions prevailing this year has retarded the filing of many registration statements. Many companies also postponed or abandoned completely projected stock and bond issues.

Carloadings Up in Past Week

Washington, July 30 (INS)—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended July 24 totalled 770,980 cars, an increase of 903 cars above the preceding week, and of 39,999 cars above the corresponding week in 1936, the Association of American Railroads announced today.

Bar Silver

London, July 30 (AP)—Bar silver declined 1-16 to 20¾d. (Sterling price equivalent to 45.39 cents).

HONESTY of Workers GREAT

EMPLOYERS GRATEFUL

By R. C. FORBES

After touring industrial centers and talking with many executives, the writer recorded in this column how gratifying were employers' estimates of the character of the vast majority of their workers. The practically unanimous testimony was that better than nine out of ten are honest, honorable, worthy, law-abiding, fair-minded citizens, animated by earnest desire to do a decent day's work and to cooperate in making their concern successful.

From another source, from another angle, comes similar testimony to the integrity of the great bulk of American individuals and families.

I asked one recognized authority Edwin Laird Cady, to conduct thoroughgoing research into instalment buying, especially to ascertain what percentage of buyers strive conscientiously to live up to their obligations.

He has furnished most exhaustive information. He reports, for one thing.

"The depression record of our national will to be honest is an amazing and gratifying one. Fewer than 50 out of every thousand deals went sour, and less than 8 per cent of note obligors were either called on to make good. Recent records of strike-bound districts show that this will to pay instalments still obtains. We pay our instalments even if we have to cut down on our food and clothing."

* * *

This column has repeatedly reported greater optimism among the rank-and-file than among the high-priced spenditures on goods for consumption—for food, for clothing, for furniture, for labor-saving and other modern household appliances, for home luxuries and comforts in general, for amusement, for recreation; for transportation; for expenditures by corporations and other business enterprises on new plants, additions and improvements to existing plants, on so-called "durable" goods.

The reason for the difference in attitude between the two groups regarding how they read the probable future future.

Another illuminating finding

"Altogether, as a mass market we are spending more of what we come today, and we have saved less. In 1929, number of individuals owning common stocks was whizzing upward 50 per cent per year; and on the basis of the 1913 figures, saving per inhabitant were up 240 per cent or so, stock of money up only 120 per cent, and money in circulation up about 40 per cent.

"By contrast, on the latest dates for which we have figures, common stock ownership is going down, savings per inhabitant are up only about 180 per cent of 'normal,' stock of money is sooning up at 380 per cent or so, and money in circulation is up about 80 per cent. Life insurance in force in 1936 was a round billion dollars more than in 1929, but it covered three million fewer policyholders and had a million dollars more in policyholders' loans against it.

"In short, if an abrupt and severe depression should strike, our public would not have the reserves it had in 1929 to meet it."

To say nothing of depleted corporation surpluses.

The New Deal administration, it is brought out, has been the worst offender in coaxing ordinary folks into debt. The Federal Housing Administration sent door-to-door canvassers to get families to buy refrigerators and such like appurtenances on payments spread over three to five years, while the Electric Home and Farm Authority has made getting into debt extraordinarily easy. Taxpayers will ultimately have to pay the inevitable losses.

However, it is comforting to be assured that, on the whole, instalment-buying hasn't run wild, that concerted steps are being taken to prevent prospective purchasers from going too deeply into debt, and—above all—that the degree of honesty among the American people is gratifyingly high.

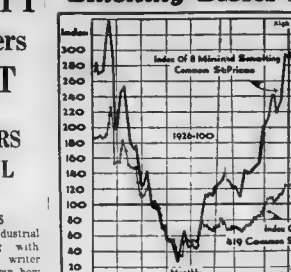
Dow Theory Cited in London

London, July 30—Major Ormerod, leading exponent of the Dow theory in the London market, writing in the London Financial Times Thursday, said

"The Dow theorists who have been awaiting a primal indication of a change in the downward trend of London stock market prices should note the action of the Financial Times industrial average yesterday.

"By rising above the minor high of 129.3 on June 25, it has made for the first time since last December a beginning of that upward zigzag pattern which accompanies rising trend of prices. This is particularly satisfactory because it confirms a similar pattern traced by the Financial Times' home rail average since March."

Smelting Sticks Erratic



Compared with the trend of the of general market, a group of eight mining and smelting stocks have fluctuated erratically.

about 27 (base 1926 equals 100), the mining and smelting group rose 1292 per cent to the March, 1937, peak. The composite group of 819 stocks during the same period rose

New Business in Wool Goods Slow

New York, July 30—New business in wool goods was rather restricted during the past week, states the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. In the mens wear division scattered fill-in ordering of fall good appeared, although a better volume was reported done in 1938 summer trop ical lines.

Formal openings of tropicals last week in advances of 25 to 30 cents are reported to have been productive of a very liberal amount of ordering, with a large part of the business in these goods for summer, 1938, already placed.

Women's wear business showed some improvement for fall. There is considerable disappointment in the retail clothing trade, where, after reasonably good retail sales in May and June, July has shown a sharp decline which has been upsetting to a great many retail establishments.

"In the men's wear division, mills are completing contracts on fall goods and the number of idle looms is reported increasing," says the Exchange Service. "Some fill-in business has been obtained, and repeat orders for fall goods have been at satisfactory prices. Trading in spring suitings and topcoatings has been light and the market is looking for a more competitive spring season."

SMALL Business Man HOPEFUL

HITS STRIDE AFTER 4 YEARS

New York, July 30 (AP)—After faltering for several years the small business man is hitting his stride. An important though unspectacular link in the nation's chain of trade and industry, the small entrepreneur's progress is no less significant than that of the giants of industry and distribution which report sales in the hundreds of millions and assets in the billions.

Reporting on the business outlook for fall, Daniel C. Roper, secretary of Commerce, said, "7 years from reliable sources that during the first half of July the small business man received more encouragement in business than in the last four years."

Particularly encouraging, Roper stressed, was information on bank loans indicating the quickening pulse of the lone businessman's activity.

Latest available statistics compiled by the Department of Commerce, reporting on 1,000 firms, illustrate the contribution of the individual business owner to the stream of national trade.

In that year, retailers number 1,453,000 and their sales totaled $33,000,000,000. Of these dealers 60 per cent had yearly sales of less than $10,000 and together they accounted for somewhat more than $3,000,000,000 of the nation's turnover.

Of 176,758 wholesalers with annual sales of $42,800,000,000, 60 per cent of them had sales of less than $100,000, aggregate of their sales was about $4,700,000,000.

The country's manufactures in 1935 of about 139,000 firms' sales were around $45,800,000,000. Of these producers, 60 per cent accounted for somewhat more than $2,000,000,000 of the total sales. The others—the small manufacturers—had the balance.

Purely as a matter of interest that organization, Representatives of the Jewish War Veterans and Veterans of the Jewish Legion will also attend.

MANY NEW PROTESTS

In the meantime other protests were coming today from Jewish leaders in Boston in connection with the British plan to split Palestine.

Dr. Leon S. Medalia, former president of the New England Zionist Region and of the National Foundation Fund, founder and former president of the Boston Hebrew College, today termed the British proposal, if carried out, as "nothing less than the betrayal of a holy trust."

Dr. Medalia spent many years of his youth in Palestine, studying Richon l' Zion, one of the first colonies in Palestine which was founded more than 50 years ago. He said:

"The recommendation of the Royal Commission to partition Palestine, if carried out, would be nothing less than the betrayal of a holy trust.

"The mandatory government has undertaken to do everything in its power to assist the Jewish people in the rehabilitation of the Homeland and repeatedly maintained that this does in nowise conflict with its promises to the Arabs.

CITES BROKEN PROMISES

"In fact the British government had in 1922 already whittled down the area of Palestine which it gave to the Arabs Transjordania, the eastern part of Palestine. Its present attempt to deprive the Jewish people only a third of the remaining portion of Palestine is against all the promises made by Great Britain and the League of Nations.

"The contention that the mandate is unworkable has no basis, in fact, since it has never been honestly tried.

"If the mandatory power had acted in the past with the same disciplinary measures as it proposes to act now in order to enforce the partition, there would have been no bloodshed and no call for Royal Commissions.

"The country has been allowed by the Arabs to become a wreck—and a desert. It took superhuman efforts, self-sacrifice and a great deal of treasure to make Palestine again the land of flowing milk and honey

WANTS U. S. ACTION

"One has only to visit Palestine to be convinced of the change wrought in the land by a Jewish people since the Balfour Declaration.

"What's more, the rank and file of the Arabs are perfectly happy and satisfied because the prosperity brought about in the land by the Jewish people is to the advantage of the Arabs and their families. They have been benefiting better health, higher living conditions and better educational facilities.

"The United States being a party to the mandate should, I feel, object strenuously to the partition."

An attempt to block the re-appointment of Thomas H. Eliot of Cambridge as counsel of the Social Security Board was due in the Senate at Washington today by Senator Joseph D. Guffey of Pennsylvania.

Oil Companies' Profits Best in 8 Years

Profit statements of the oil companies are reflecting the sharp improvement in that industry both in consumption of products and price stability. On the basis of operations in the first six months of this year profits were at the best level in at least eight years, and in some cases at new all-time high records.

For 11 companies reporting thus far on first-half operations net income totaled $83,947,867, against $39,766,125 in the like period of 1936, an increase of 60 per cent.

The largest percentage gain was shown by Union Oil Company and by Derby Oil & Refining Company, which more than doubled.

Texas Corporation showed an increase of 70 per cent, Phillips Petroleum Company of 72 per cent, Tide Water Associated of 46 per cent, Sun Oil Company of 26 per cent, Plymouth Oil of 65 per cent, Panhandle Producing and Refining of 70 per cent, Texas Pacific Coal & Oil of 70 per cent, Atlantic Refining of 9.6 per cent and Barnsdall of 4 per cent.

Boston Edison Net Slightly Higher

Boston, July 30 (AP)—The Boston Edison Company tonight reported an income balance of $5,516,401, or $8.94 per share on 617,161 shares of stock for the year ended June 30.

Wholesale Prices Decline

A sharp decline in wholesale prices of farm products caused the Bureau of Labor Statistics all-commodity index to decline 0.8 per cent during the week ended July 24.

The decline is the first in the past four weeks and placed the all-commodity index at 81% per cent of the 1926 average. The index is 0.9 per cent above a month ago and 9.1 per cent above a year ago.

660-Pound Tuna Caught Off Cape

Tuna have taken a turn for the better.

That's the season's record for hook and line.

In two days' fishing in the same vicinity, however, a party including Arthur O'Brien, Bill Frisch, Brainerd Kenning and Harry Marcovita, with Hal Cann of Yarmouth as guide, failed to get a strike.

On another day they went with F. E. LeBlanc, the guide who took President Roosevelt tuna fishing off the Cape last season.

Only thrill came when they saw a 600-pound tuna harpooned.

Even in the Canadian provinces salmon and trout fishing has apparently dwindled, with good sport reported in some retreats.

Good catches of salmon and grilse were taken from the St. John's river up toward Hartland and at the mouth of the Tobique. Nine salmon and grilse taken on a single rod one day last week, 17 fish by one party on another day.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Brownell of Fairhaven, accompanied by two friends, took 83 salmon and 30 grilse in 11 days in the Miramichi.

Better fishing is reported on the southwestern waters of the river, from Half Moon Cove to Boiestown, N. B.

Kendall Moultrop, Lincoln Park, R. I., took 11 grilse one week; R. L. Pond of South Dartmouth took two salmon and five grilse one day.

* * *

A six-pound blue fish was taken recently off Hyannis, and a school of bluss has been reported there.

Stripers are holding good at Hennessy and Nauset beach, according to Herb Farrell.

There is a growing suspicion that there are as many tuna in the waters up around Ipswich and Gloucester as in the vaunted tuna grounds off Soldier's Rip.

Shaw McKean, a resident on the North Shore in summer, hooked one in Ipswich Bay, but the fish parted his line.

Soldier's Rip one tuna was taken over the week-end, though there were eight boats out Saturday, 10 on Sunday and 11 Monday.

Ben Crowninshield and R. W. Leach, most successful with tuna last year, hooked more on feather jigs than bait.

Crowninshield has now started for Halifax and Liverpool, N. S., for the big sporters.

L. Dana Chapman's prediction is that the warm weather has spoiled inland fishing until September and the coming of chill mornings.

The Radio Skeet Club, Hingham, is to hold a registered 100-bird all-bore shoot Sunday, starting at 10 a. m., with both ladies and men's events. High gun trophy, also first and second prizes in Classes A, B, C and D.

W. E. Beakes will be host again.

* * *

Mrs. Ralph Fletcher, Westford, won the women's first prize, R. A. Lesson and Dick Shaughnessy tied for men's first, and Harold Tarr and Fred Burns won team first at the Vermont State Skeet Shoot at Burlington, Vt.

Twenty-one nimrods from Massachusetts entered.

Lesson teamed with Dr. Rush Williams, also of Boston, to win second in the two-man team, yielding to Tarr of Somerville and Burns of Milton. Both the latter shot 94, while Lesson and Williams took a 93 team score.

Henry Oakes harpooned an 800 pound mackerel shark 200 yards off the Manchester shore a couple of days ago. The shark was seen to attack a porpoise weighing about 200 pounds and was trailed by the blood stream in the water. And if you ask: What good is a shark? Learn here that this one brought six cents a pound in the market. It is an edible species.

With Oakes on Wednesday, fishing 18 miles off Thatchers' Island, Bill Thatcher (he doesn't own the island) of this paper sighted many big tuna on the feed at last. The big boys were slashing into great schools of bait and plunging high above the surface. Later in the day they were sighted in several spots, finning. The tuna are funally feeding and some great sport is in the making. Tony Farrell, who spent a fortune on bait before they started taking hold, has brought more than a dozen to gaff with the rod in recent days.

Slayer of Family Of 4 Dies in Chair

Huntsville, Tex., July 30 (AP)—George Patton, 55, dier in the electri chair at state prison here early today for the murder of a family of four.

Two years ago, after confessing he "had killed the family in a quarrel over crop division, he led officers to his pasture and dug up the four skeletons.

Workers Fight Sugar Stand

Opposition to Secretary of the Interior Ickes' stand on sugar legislation, now before Congress, is expressed in a statement issued today by the Boston Sugar Refinery Workers' Union.

The statement declares that because no limitation has been placed upon the refining of sugar in continental United States there should be no discrimination with respect to refining operations in the national defense measures.

In reply the Workers' Union points to the low wage scales of Cuba, Puerto Rico and Canada, and maintains that any additional competition with them may mean the scrapping of refineries in Boston, New York and elsewhere.

Under further challenges the Roosevelt administration to approve legislation to pay domestic refiners bounties that will enable them to compete with their offshore rivals or, as an alternative, to compel the islands to raise wages and reduce working hours.

COURT BERTH FOR MURPHY, NEW REPORT

Washington, July 30 (INS)—President Roosevelt was in receipt today of the requested opinion from Attorney General Cummings as to whether he could legally make a recess appointment to the Supreme Court.

This became known as the capital speculated on the significance of the coming week-end visit of Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan to the White House.

REPORT ON MURPHY

In some quarters it was reported Murphy was under serious consideration by the President for appointment to the Supreme Court to succeed Willis Van Devanter retired.

The Attorney General's opinion reached the White House last night, but the President said at his press conference today he had not yet read it. He would not say whether it would be made public later.

There is a divergence of opinion about the Supreme Court appointment. Many constitutional lawyers have held that as the vacancy occurred while Congress was sitting it would have to be filled before adjournment.

BOARDS YACHT TONIGHT

Roosevelt personally at the time he asked for a ruling from Cummings indicated it was his belief he could wait until Congress goes home and make a recess appointment.

The President was planning to board the White House yacht Potomac tonight with Governor Murphy as his guest, and cruise in the Potomac river.

The President said that because of the menacing Sino-Japanese situation, however, the yacht would not get more than two or three hours away from Washington.

Roosevelt said Murphy's visit was "purely social."

Provincetown Cruise Monday

Another all-day cruise to Provincetown at half-rates will be available for readers of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser next Monday, August 2.

All you have to do to qualify is to clip the cruise coupon from the Boston Sunday Advertiser on August 1. This coupon with $1 entitles an adult to the round trip. For children under 12, with a coupon, the price is only 50 cents.

The trip down Massachusetts Bay and back will be on the luxurious, ocean-going steamship Steel Pier. It leaves Long Wharf, at Atlantic avenue, foot of State street, at 10 a. m. and will be back before eight in the evening.

Suicide Note Claimed in Strangling

Victim Wrote Farewell Message, Says Martin

New York, July 30 (AP)—In a dramatic move to escape possible death in the electric chair, Stanley A. Martin, Jr., 29-year-old confessed strangler, today insisted that a five-word farewell note was written by the woman he allegedly killed "because she asked me to."

The note, which was found pasted on the windshield of the automobile in which Martin garroted Mrs. Florence Jackson, 37, mother of three children, read:

"Dear God—you will understand—"

Reversing a previous understanding that he had written the note himself, preliminary to carrying out a double suicide pact, Martin today declared:

"She wrote it. I didn't do it. It proves she agreed that I should kill her, that it was the only way out for us, and that we were to die together. But I didn't have the nerve to kill myself."

Queens County officials immediately sent the note to handwriting experts to determine the authorship.

Martin, entering a formal plea of not guilty, was arraigned on a homicide charge yesterday and held without bail pending action by the grand jury. He told police he strangled Mrs. Jackson Tuesday with the red leather belt of her dress and then intended to take his own life by driving the murder car over a bridge.

ABUSES SEEN IN LABOR ACT

Washington, July 30—The administration has failed to cope with abuses arising out of the Wagner labor relations act, Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, declared today.

Revision of the administration of the act, may be necessary said the chairman of the Senate labor committee, adding:

"It is possible that some of the members of the national labor relations board have not performed their functions conscientiously and honorably.

"It is possible they have been dominated or controlled by one side or the other."

The tremendous movement into organized labor unions resulting from the Wagner act was not foreseen by Congress nor was it the purpose of Congress, Walsh said.

Nearly all recent strikes resulted from rivalries between different labor groups, he contended.

changes could be made in the House.

This development came as the Senate entered its fourth day of debate on the disputed measure.

Senator Reynolds (D.) of North Carolina opened skirmishing by submitting an amendment to exempt from the regulatory provisions of the bill all employees of ten or fewer persons.

The non-partisan organization meeting was attended by more than 40 House members, including Democrats, Republicans, Progressives and Farmer-Laborites.

Representative Healey (D.) of Massachusetts, was elected permanent chairman. He was directed to appoint a steering committee of 25 to "defeat any and all attempts" to adjourn Congress until the wage-hour legislation is enacted.

Green's letter said the Senate should approve "the best wage and hour bill possible," without sending the measure now before it back to the committee.

"The Wages and Hours bill in the form in which it is now before the Senate does not meet the expectations of labor," Green said in a statement issued in connection with the letter.

"However, we recognize the need for the enactment of wages and hours legislation."

"BEST POSSIBLE BILL"

"For that reason, rather than recommit the Senate bill for further committee consideration, it would seem advisable to pass the best wages and hours bill possible in the Senate, with the hope that it can be revised and amended in the House in such a way as to make it more nearly satisfactory and acceptable to labor."

As Senate debate was resumed, however, Majority Leader Barkley and Senator Black, co-author of the bill, expressed confidence it would pass, despite Democratic defections.

The House anti-adjournment group also expressed interest in the legislation.

"We wish it understood," said a resolution the bloc adopted, "that we stand ready to stay in session until agricultural, farm price stabilization, housing and other necessary legislation is enacted."

The group met in closed session and Representative Boileau (R.) of Wisconsin, temporary chairman told reporters it had a membership of more than 90.

Among those attending today's session was Representative Oliver (R.) of Maine.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The chief controversy in education nowadays seems to turn around the question: should it be the business of the teacher to teach or should it be his business to throw modern controversial problems to the class to worry as a terrier worries a bone?

For some years critics of college education have held that there should be much more class debate than used to be the fashion.

Now the same champions of free discussion are demanding that it be granted to grade school children as well. This is demanded in the name of democracy, with little consideration of the effect of it on the children—or on the teachers.

I know exactly where I stand after some 25 years of college teaching. I know that if free discussion in college classes is a considerable waste of time, it is all the more waste when encouraged among immature students of lower ages and school grades.

Good Students Prefer Authoritative Talks

For a good many years I have noticed that the good students, those who get high grades, are pretty impatient of the kind of teaching which throws controversial questions into class discussion.

They object, and in my opinion rightly, that they are not paying tuition to listen to the notions and hearsays of other students, who are probably no wiser than they. They prefer to listen to statements reasonably authoritative given by instructors who may be supposed to know something about the subjects in hand.

On the other hand, I have noticed that there is a kind of weakling who is all for constant talk, initiated by himself and carried on by fellows like himself. He, too, thinks it more democratic to have the class shoot off its collective mouth about things it doesn't know very much about. Hearsays, opinions, notions and propaganda are usually the stock in trade of such people.

A man named Earl Brewster who used to teach economics at Harvard and now is a visiting professor of education at Teachers College, New York—which is very different from Teachers' College, as conducted in Boston, and, I suspect, far less safe—has been telling the grade teachers that education has no business to be giving the pupils facts. Teachers should encourage free disputation by immature pupils in all matters affecting their lives.

Let Children Talk Theory Advocated

The fact that there is little agreement even among authorities as to what economic facts and principles really are does not deter this gentleman. Let the children talk, the more the better, unless you wish to betray democracy, he says.

"The American way of life requires freedom of discussion. While economic education should, of course, breed passion for facts and skill in reasoning with them, it must be recognized that that choice in economic matters will ordinarily be affected by differences of opinion

"It must be expected that discussion of economic questions in the schools, especially those that have a political bearing, will be controversial. It is a matter of fundamental importance in a democracy that such controversy should be permitted."

Precisely. But not by grade school children, nor high school, nor even necessarily by college freshmen. Where it occurs, you will find nine times out of ten that the teacher in charge is trying to put over doctrines not as yet generally accepted except by the crack-pots.

Teach Old Established Facts and Principles

You will find usually in such a class that the leaders are the mouthy boys and girls short on solid facts and long on opinions and theories. You will find that the more solid and more able pupils sit silent in disgust while a teacher full of theory and pupils full of hearsay chase their tails around a current problem.

It will be found usually, too, that any attempt to express the old well-established and traditional points of view is usually hushed on the ground that only the new ideas are valid.

The first thing to do is to teach the old-established facts and principles. Then, and only then, is it time to explore the new points of view, keeping the discussion as impartial as free from propaganda as a wise instructor and sensible youth can keep it. It won't be as exciting to that gabby majority of the class, but it will be more useful.

MRS. ELIZABETH F. WING
Denies "Influence" of Uncle

MRS. WING'S HOLLYWOOD RESIDENCE
Uncle Shared Upper Apartment With Her

This is the Hollywood house in which Mrs. Elizabeth F. Wing of Lynn and her uncle, Frederick E. Furbush, admittedly shared an upper apartment, after Mrs. Wing had left her husband. The latter, suing Furbush for $100,000, alleges that close association of uncle and niece in Hollywood was a factor in persuading Mrs. Wing to secure a divorce.

FREDERICK E. FURBUSH
Blamed by Husband

FURBUSH ON STAND DENIES LOVE THEFT

Salem, July 30—In his final arguments, Attorney James Sullivan in Probate court here today characterized pretty, 36-year-old Elizabeth Wing as "too smart for her husband" and "a modern, smart girl ou in the world."

Sullivan is counsel for Robert H. Wing, 37-year-old divorced husband of the auburn-haired Lynn stenographer, who is seeking $100,000 heart balm from Frederick E. Furbush, 52, wealthy Swampscott realtor, for allegedly alienating the affections of his wife.

Furbush is Mrs. Wing's uncle.

After arguments by Sullivan and Attorney John Burns, counsel for Furbush, Master Frank Hathaway took the case under advisement. He declared that he would make a finding "probably in about three weeks."

In his argument, Attorney Sullivan declared:

"I don't suppose it can be said that a man 52 is impervious to feminine charm. We find this man (Furbush) never married until he was 40 then set in on a woman 20.

"He had no money. She had a substantial fortune. hey lived together for nine years. One year before this incident we are trying he received between 35 and 50 thousand dollars in cash and valuable land.

"He's 52, free and rich. He's had no experience that would justify a finding that he was in a state of indifference to charms of womankind.

"He can't complain of the inference that all sophisticated, average people would draw from his relationship with his niece in California. They would call him a saint or a fool."

Sullivan then said that he agreed with Mrs. Wing's father's appraisal of his daughter that she was "too modern." He continued:

SCORES RENO DIVORCE

"Here's a girl who's an actress, turning on the tears at the right moment, then quickly returning to normal, glibly to testify that she paid for every lemonade."

Sullivan referred to testimony that Furbush and his niece split expenses during their cross-country automobile trip in 1932.

"He was an easy-going, good-natured fellow, crazy about his wife, who was a modern, smart girl out in the world."

"A Reno divorce is a confession that one seeking it was unable to prove any case in the courts of this Commonwealth. A person who goes to Reno for a divorce gets one that's only half a divorce."

Another time Sullivan remarked.

"A married man doesn't live any longer than a single man. It seems longer."

FURBUSH TESTIFIES

Burns, counsel for Furbush, asserted in his arguments that his client had no ulterior motive in taking Mrs. Wing to California.

He declared that Furbush did so as a special favor to the young woman's mother and father. Burns stated that Furbush had no intentions of separating the couple.

On the witness stand this morning Furbush denied that he had ever attempted to influence his niece against a reconciliation with her husband.

Describing the details leading up to the cross-country automobile trip he and his niece made in 1932, Furbush testified:

"In 1932 I inserted an ad in a Boston newspaper for someone to help me drive to California.

"I got a reply from Mr. K. Wadsworth of Cambridge. I met him and had practically completed all arrangements for him to make the trip.

ARRANGED BY PARENTS

"In the latter part of November (1932) I went to m; brother's home to say goodby.

"My brother and his wife told me that their daughter had separated from her husband and they asked me to take Elizabeth with me as they thought it would be good for her to get away for a little while."

Furbush testified they left December 8, 1932. He asserted that he didn't "think I've spoken more than six words in all my life to Wing."

He testified that he had "no feeling one way or another toward Wing" and that he had no basis for any malice toward him. He continued:

"By no act, word or deed did I attempt to influence my niece against a reconciliation with her husband.

"I did not urge her to go to Reno nor did I advance any money for her divorce. I knew nothing of the letter which she sent to her husband two weeks after we arrived in California in which a reconciliation was discussed."

Election to Close Convention of Druggists

The 16th International convention of Rho Pi Phi, pharmaceutical fraternity, entered its final session at the Hotel Statler today, with election of officers, presentation of service awards and a dinner dance tonight featuring the program.

More than 200 delegates attending the convention from all parts of the country were to vote for a new supreme councilor from a slate of four candidates

Maurice Goldsmith of Boston, chairman of the 1937 service awards committee was one of the candidates. The others were Isaac I. Weiser of Providence, present supreme councilor; Julius Stross of Detroit, present first vice-supreme councilor, and Louis Ruda of New Haven.

W. R. HEARST HONORED

One of the highlights of the final session was the honoring of William Randolph Hearst, publisher, and Professor Albert Einstein, Nobel prize winner, for "humanitarian services."

Mr. Hearst, publisher of the American Druggist, among other magazines and newspapers was unanimously cited for instituting "Your Good Health" radio programs. Both the publisher and Prof Einstein were awarded honorary memberships and fraternity scrolls.

At the service awards banquet tonight the convention will honor Frank C. Miller, of Louisville, selected as the "gold medal druggist," nine stewardesses of the American Airlines, Inc., and Ralph Damon, vice president of the airplane company, because of their work during the Louisville, Ky., flood.

The stewardesses arrived in Boston aboard a plane from Chicago and were met at the airport by a delegation from the fraternity.

Plans for them included a trip to City Hall to meet Mayor Mansfield, a visit to the State House to meet Lieutenant-Governor Kelly, and then a journey to police headquarters to meet Commissioner Timilty and the 20 Boston policemen who did flood duty in Louisville.

GUESTS AT TRACK

The pretty airline hostesses then were to be guests of the Suffolk Downs Racing Association at a track luncheon and later see the "Air Hostess Derby" from the judges stand.

Weiser led the delegates yesterday in a discussion of fair trade legislation and presented the convention guests, Jerry McQuade, editor of Drug Topics, and Frank Miller, the "gold medal druggist."

Henry C. Levick, president of the Boston Association of Retail Druggists, and Max Miller, recently elected honorary member of the fraternity, were presented with scrolls.

"HELLO AND THANKS, RHO PI PHI"

Here as honor guests of Rho Pi Phi, international pharmaceutical fraternity, are these nine flying nurses of American Airlines, Inc. Employed as airplane stewardesses during the Mississippi and Ohio river floods, the girls did valiant and effective nursing work, above and beyond their regular duties. They will receive diplomas of merit at the Rho Pi Phi convention's concluding banquet tonight at the Hotel Statler. In the group, front to back, are E. Joan Waltermire, Phyllis G. Alldredge, Mabel W. Williams, Marion Horton, Marie O. Wanda, Agnes B. Spence, Karoline K. Goth, Thelma G. Fuller and Mae B. Leslie.

ANN MARSTERS

You shouldn't lose your temper, because it's not good for you. It does terrible things to your heart, and every time you get angry your heart grows a little smaller.

If you're a man, and swear when you quarrel with people (your wife, for instance), then it doesn't harm you as much as it does for a woman to grow angry — because women aren't supposed to swear. And violent language relieves nervous tension.

All this was set forth on a paper read by Dr. Eric Wittkower the other day before the Royal Society of Medicine in London.

He also stated that a "broken heart" is more than just a romantic expression of the lovelorn. It is an actual and serious condition of the heart which, although it can't really break in two, can be definitely affected by grieving over a lost love.

So it is better to let love come—and go—as it will, and to be strong-minded about the whole matter—so don't say we didn't warn you.

And when a woman has a fit of temper it is best to let her smash a few vases or throw a few dishes at you. And you should look on indulgently, remembering that it's good for her heart.

N. E. Woman Gets Bit of Wally's Dress

A New England woman, who takes frequent trips to Paris and patronizes the French couturier Mainbocher, is saving a fragment of cloth which may, with the years, become a historic souvenir.

It is a snip of the material used in making the wedding dress of Wally Simpson—I mean the Duchess of Windsor. A little sewing girl at Mainbocher's, where the duchess' gown was made, salvaged it from the leftover pieces, pinned it to a card and mailed it to her in America.

SUMMER LOVE

Now that I look upon the moving sea,
I have my summer love to comfort me;
But well I know, as sure as night descends,
This dream will vanish when the summer ends
I might have fashioned something to endure.
Some steady love, some friendship staunch and sure—
But in my heart persistent warnings lurk;

Famed Maitre d'Hotel Gets Film Role

One of the most famous maitre d'hotels America ever knew was Jules Molnar. He used to preside over the delicacies at the old Waldorf-Astoria hotel, at Delmonico's and Sherry's and other New York eating places known the world over.

He was a favorite of Theodore Roosevelt, in bygone days, and of "Diamond Jim" Brady and Mrs. Jay Gould.

And now—now he is a movie actor. He has been given a role in Carole Lombard's picture, "Nothing Sacred," and the scene in which he plays represents the banquet hall of the Waldorf-Astoria, where he first became a chef

Hat Streamers Out, Veils on Way In

Fashion Note: Streamers are out! At least the newest hats are entirely lacking in ribbons down the back.

High hats are in again—and if you like them, well and good, but as for me I never could. Veils are VERY much in, and I shall try not to feel silly behind them. Surely the huge cartwheel hats with veils that swirl and swoop down almost to the shoulders should be most attractive and dramatic.

Then there are French veils that just clear the chin. And, if you don't like the skyscraper hats, it's all right to wear rather flat hats with eye-shadow veils.

It has taken the designers quite a while to make us really accept veils—but it looks as though we'll all be wearing them this winter.

Defends Selection Of Endeavour II

Faster Than Mate, Says Sopwith

Newport, R. I., July 30 (AP)—T. O. M. Sopwith, in an interview aboard his palatial motor yacht Philante, disclosed the choice of his Endeavour II over Endeavor I to challenge for the America's Cup had been decided after a series of a dozen test races off Newport.

"We were criticised, unjustly, I think, for not giving the new Endeavour real competition, to determine the boat's merits," said Sopwith.

"The fact is we gave her all the competition she needed to prove she was the better boat.

"When we came over we didn't know which was the faster. The trials proved Endeavour II to be consistently superior."

The British yachtsman, while chasing the enthusiasm of his associates over Endeavour I's victory in a race with Harold S. Vanderbilt's cup-defending Ranger, ventured no prediction on the outcome of the main event.

RANGER U. S. BEST

"Ranger seems much the best of the American boats, and we should have a good match."

Asked whether he would be prepared, if victorious, to defend the cup next year, Sopwith replied

"Let's wait until we win it."

The Briton anticipates no repetition of misunderstandings over the racing rules such as marred the 1934 races.

He said all points of difference had been cleared up but added, with a smile

"We know when to fly the protest flag now, if need be."

Sopwith refuted the general belief his first challenger, Endeavour I was superior on all points of sailing to Rainbow and therefore, should have won the cup in 1937.

"Endeavor was better to windward and before the wind," he conceded, "but Rainbow showed definite supriority in reaching."

The British yachtsman will keep both Endeavours in competition here for a month after the America's Cup races—win or lose

They will compete against American rivals in the New York Yacht Club cruise, as well as off Marblehead, Mass.

The big Hearst outboard regatta, which takes place on the Charles River Basin August 7 and 8, will be replete with champions

Jimmy hails all the way from Richmond and will travel north with his two greatest rooters, his mother and dad

James Mullen, who is a prominent attorney at Richmond, is an outboard enthusiast. He has been named chairman of the national regatta which will take place in Richmond this fall.

The Richmond speed king has a tough assignment, though, as he will be racing against the best in the country. Curiously enough, these amateur events have several entrants who are not youngsters.

Gerald Sherran of New York who is close to 40, will be competing with Jimmy Mullen, Gar Wood Jr., Clint Ferguson and others who have not reached voting age.

Sherran, incidentally, is vice-president of a large nationally known insurance company in Brooklyn, N. Y. Outboard racing is his hobby, and he has had great success with his Feigerita, IV.

The great regatta is only eight days away. Early next week several of the stars will head for Boston to be ready for the big weekend.

Officials handling the regatta believe this year's event will easily surpass the great displays of the past two summers.

Despite the fact that the marks set up in the past make record-breaking performances appear difficult, it is believed that several will go.

Kay Stammers Wins in Canada

Toronto, July 30 (AP)—Kay Stammers, star of Great Britain's Wightman Cup team, had to turn on her best tennis before she could enter the women's single semifinals of the Canadian lawn tennis championship.

Miss Stammers beat Canada's No. 1 player, Jean Milne of Vancouver, in three hotly contested sets, 1—6, 6—2, 6—3. She joined Mary Hardwicke, Evelyn Dearman and Freda James in the penultimate round.

Big League Talent Aplenty on Cape

Buzzards Bay, July 30—With the Cape Cod League season just four weeks old, Pete Herman's Barnstable charges are holding down the top position in the standing with a record of 13 victories and five losses.

The Barnstable nine has almost a three-game lead on the second place Falmouth outfit.

Guy Vitale, center fielder on the nine, is leading the Cranberry Loop in total hits with 40 and is batting for .350. One other real powerhouse in the a team's lineup is Frank "Cowboy" Crawley, burly second sacker. In addition to being the best defensive infielder in the league, Frank is sporting a fine .343 with the willow.

There are no games scrolled in the Cranberry circuit for next Monday. On that date, the All-Star team of Cape players will be at the high school grounds in Brockton meeting Joe Cronin's Boston Red Sox. The proceeds of this tilt will go toward the milk fund in the Shoe City.

Big league scouts would do well to take in that charity game at Brockton. There are many players in the Cape league that loom as future big leaguers.

The battery for the Cape Codders in the tilt with the Yankeeites will have Francis "Quick" Escott, Bourne and Villanova Colege, and "Art" Kenny, Harwich and Holy Cross, pitchers, and Mike Ryan, Falmouth and Holy Cross, catcher.

Sopwith Fails

Protests Rent Air in '34 Series

(This is the final article on the "History of America Cup Races.")

By CAPTAIN CUTWATER

Old Tom Lipton had only a year to live when he brought over Shamrock V in 1930.

Much of his old keenness was gone, and the series was a heartbreaking succession of four wins for Harold S. Vanderbilt's "machine shop" Enterprise.

The series, a four-out-of-seven affair, was the first to be sailed at Newport.

The new gadgets developed for Enterprise, and the fact that she was junked the year after the races, brought a demand for revised rules that would produce a better boat.

As a result the yachting authorities of England and America got together on a set of restrictions that produced the able sloops Endeavour and Rainbow in 1934

New to big boat racing was T. O. M. Sopwith, British aviator and manufacturer who took up the burden of challenging after Lipton died.

His beautiful craft was admitted by a faster boat than the defender and opened the series by winning the first two races amid a tumultuous ovation at Newport.

Then his lack of experience took its penalty, and Vanderbilt in Ranger captured the next four in a row.

The series was notorious for protests by both Vanderbilt and Sopwith, and ire quite unjustified refusal of the race committee to hear Sopwith's complaint, on purely technical grounds, stirred up bitterness against the New York Yacht Club here and abroad.

Sopwith sailed back to England, swearing he would never race for the cup again, but in the ensuing three years he has thought better of it, and here he is again, looking for revenge, no doubt.

His Endeavour II is a fast boat and is better manned than her predessor. She will doubtless give Vanderbilt's new Ranger a run for her money

It would be the best possible thing for the sport of yachting if Endeavour II could take the America's Cup to the other side of the ocean for a brief visit—but she probably won't

Dickey's Homer Nips Tigers, 7-6

New York, July 30 (US)—Bill Dickey poled a dramatic home run into the right field stands in the ninth inning to give the New York Yankees a 7 to 6 verdict over the Detroit Tigers.

The victory increased the Yankee lead over the Tigers to seven games and gave them the edge in the series, two games to one.

N. E. Junior Titlist

Crawford Notch, N. H., July 30 (AP)—Billy Power of Worcester, Mass., No. 1 ranking New England junior, defeated Arthur Forchaska of Hartford, Ct., for the junior singles title, 6—1, 6—3, 6—2, in the fourth annual New England junior tennis tournament.

Maribel Vinson Turns Pro: B. A. A. House Hunts: A.A.U. and Wild Mustangs

MISS MARIBEL VINSON, THE FEMALE skate-dancer whose shapely shanks often featured the ice carnivals of the Boston Skating Club, has joined Mr. Bill O'Brien's glacial ballet, the "Swiss Soiree," which appears at the Boston Garden next November. Maribel, if it is not presuming on our casual acquaintance to employ the familiar vocative, is the Winchester lass who learned her first schoolfigures as a wee, gangle-legged gal in the Arena and, by parental proddings, rose to be premier lady scooter of the U. S. A.

AUSTEN LAKE

Maribel has been trying a flight in journalism until the other day, when Mr. Bill O'Brien, the pro tennis tempter who lured Ellsworth Vines, Fred Perry and other high-ranking court amateurs into the vocational end, induced her to exhibit her charming extremities next winter as scooting companion to Karl Schaefer, the Austrian champion. Maribel needed no urging. As a journalist she has been writing yarns about the large earnings of other ex-amateur curlicue cutters, like Bess Ehrhart, Evelyn Chandler and Sonja Henie. The earnings of a lady journalist are usually modest. So she snapped at the sordid shilling with alacrity.

Proof that Eddie Shore's kink in the fifth lumbar area has knitted satisfactorily comes in the news that he finished second in the Provincial amateur golf tournament at Banff. While the body tortion required in driving a golf ball does not compare with the tensil twisting of checking a hockey wingman, Eddie will rejoin the Bruins before the starting date, November 9, and play as long as his pelvis stays stuck.

B. A. A. Membership Grows

FOR TWO YEARS, SINCE LOSING THEIR Exeter street quarters in a bankrupt sale, the B. A. A. has survived in a five-room apartment at the Hotel Lenox, where many of the old punctilio forms have been maintained, including private bar, restaurant, library, billiard room and lounge. For this it pays a nominal rental, with the hotel operating all beverage and food concessions. In fact, the B. A. A. has saved a nice little nest egg from fees, track meet profits and donations. Its membership has grown to nearly 200.

So, arriving at a stage of self-sustaining prosperity, the officers have been shopping in the vicinity of Commonwealth Avenue, with an eye to leasing a new location. They feel a nostalgic urge to hang out the traditional blue postern light with its rampant unicorn once more and take New Year's wassail around their own punch bowl.

The B. A. A. has rebuilt its membership carefully, mindful that, when the old building passed to the sheriff, there was $75,000 in unpaid house-bills outstanding among defaulters. Still, there is one danger in their method of re-organization, which is formed from a nucleus of elders and men in latter middle age. Neglect of youth brought decay to the old B. A. A., and failure to make a proportionate appeal to younger men may mean ruin again.

Moochers to March on Boston

THE AWARD OF THE 1937 A. A. U. National Convention to Boston next November 13, 14 and 15, is hailed by local boosters as a feather in the city's cap. Local economists, soured by the annual joy-rides of mooching A. A. U. officials, hailed the Boston convention as a money-saving means. Quite the contrary is the case. The local entertainment committee must provide two luncheons for the journeyman chiselers, and one grand finale gobble. The cost of operation, including rooms where the delegates exhale large conversations about meaningless topics and play their go-behind-toe-hold politics, and the little prequisites which the fat, florid and antique grifters hold dear to their stomachs, come out of the New England treasury and will run into several thousand dollars

The cost comes out of the earnings of the A. A. U. kids, who usually have to panhandle their way to distant competitions. Though hardly a kid, Clarence DeMar's recent experience in asking suitable traveling and hotel accommodations for his marathon trip to Dallas, is a handy illustration. Clarence got a nasty blurt and threat of expulsion from Mr. Dan Ferris, the national secretary, who will come to Boston next autumn on velvet, at no cost to himself, and live in Oriental luxury

WALTER BROWN, SMART SON OF HIS ABLE SIRE, George V., is back from a tour of the Western cow country, where he was charged with assembling a rodeo troup of cattle-folk and clinical animals for the Garden's show of October 27 to November 6. Among the novelties he hopes to import as a wild horse race between steeds which are caught on the Texas plains, shaggy stock, which has never felt a cinch rope or bridle for generations. The horses are a no-account, inbred type, which wander in herds and are roped by cowboys waiting at the waterholes.

The race starts with the animals penned in bucking stalls, with cowboys, three assigned to each horse, waiting at the starting line. At a signal each team of three attempts to saddle and bridle their mount and place one of their mates on board. The rider then tries to work his terrified beast over the finishing line, less than 100 yards away. The result, says Walter, is a perfectly fascinating scene of six or eight insane steeds "unfishing," crab walking and buck-jumping in six or eight directions, though seldom toward the desired taw.

If successful in catching a dozen wild horses, they will be shipped to Boston and later used in the New York Rodeo, after which, not being worth the cost of transporting back to their native plains, they will be converted into garden-fertilizer and envelope-glue.

AL PUTS McCarthy AWAY

DICK MALONEY MAKES HIT

By JACK CONWAY

Al McCoy continued his drive in the direction of a world championship bout with Joe Louis when he knocked out Jack McCarthy in three rounds before 7000 fans at a Goodwin A. C. show at Fenway Park.

McCoy subjected McCarthy to a decisive defeat.

Al was complete master of the situation from the time the gong sounded for the opening of the first round until Referee Joe O'Connor stopped the one-sided tussle after the bell announced the closing of the third.

In the first round it was apparent McCoy a boxing-skill and superior speed would enable him to win. He pulled away from McCarthy's rushes and nailed the Roxbury heavyweight with left hooks and right-hand punches to the head.

JACK'S JAW TARGET

McCarthy drove through a couple of swinging rights which landed high on McCoy's head. The champion shook off the blows and came back tossing leather with both dukes.

McCoy speeded up in the second round. He sidestepped when McCarthy rushed at him, and hooked lefts to the jaw. As McCarthy floundered, McCoy shot sharp rights to the jaw.

Late in the session, McCoy drove a perfect right to McCarthy's jaw and the latter crashed back into the ropes and landed in a sitting position on the lower rope. Jack struggled to his feet and then the gong sounded for the end of the round.

McCoy dropped his hands and started to walk toward his own corner. McCarthy didn't hear the gong and rushed at McCoy and started swinging punches. McCoy held Jack until the rockers were pried apart by Referee O'Connor.

McCarthy, bleeding from three small cuts on his face, tried to make a fight out of it early in the third round. He sent his left forward but his judgment of distance was bad.

McCoy then rained lefts and rights to McCarthy's jaw. It did not seem possible for a boxer to take so much punishment without going down. McCarthy staggered around the ring, and when in close threw left and right hand blows at McCoy.

Al landed a terrific belt to the jaw just before the gong sounded for the end of the round. The force of the blow turned McCarthy half way around. Referee O'Connor stepped in and stopped the bout a few seconds after the round had ended.

DICK MALONEY WINS

McCoy, weighing 183½ pounds, was fast. McCarthy, at 187½ pounds, was in good physical condition. He was three pounds lighter than when he fought on the Braddock-Louis card.

Dick Maloney of South Boston, brother of Shamus, made a decided hit with the crowd when he scored a victory over Roy Kelley of Brookline in a ten-round bout.

Maloney dropped Kelley for a count of nine in the fourth round with a left hook to the jaw. Roy's ring experience was all that enabled him to weather the storm when he regained his feet.

ZANELLI CAN FIGHT

Zanelli is a terrific puncher, and it will take a first class welterweight to give him any serious opposition. Allen was no match for the Providence thumper.

Terry Warrenton of Nova Scotia won the decision over Emil Schultz of Germany after ten bruising rounds of fighting. Warrenton was obliged to step on high through the final round to win the decision.

One Step Nearer Bout With Louis

M'Coy-Shucco Bout Aug. 23

Al McCoy, New England heavyweight champion, will defend his title against Tony Shucco of the North End in a 12-round bout at a Goodwin A. C. show at Fenway Park on August 23.

Guibord, Fuller Coast-Bound Tomorrow

New York, July 30—Proud and happy today are Paul Guibord of Melrose and Edward Fuller of Salem, newly crowned Hearst Eastern tennis champions.

They're literally kicking up their heels like a pair of frisky colts with bag and baggage ready for tomorrow's West Coast Limited which will be carrying them on to new and—they hope—greater court triumphs in Los Angeles.

Guibord, now holding both the New England and Eastern singles and doubles titles, Fuller the doubles, are spending much of the free-from-worry day donning new tennis raiment, for the Hearst sponsors of the trip to the Grand National finals are outfitting them from head to foot.

With the New Englanders when they leave will be Helen Germaine of New York, women's Eastern Hearst champion, who gained her cross country trip at the expense of Boston's Sylvia Hatch, who went down, it's true, but only after a grand battle in the final.

Fuller had intended to compete as a member of the combined Princeton-University of North Carolina team which plays Oxford-Cambridge over the weekend at Merion, Philadelphia, but his whole bent at the moment seems to be to pull out the National Hearst title. So he has passed up everything else which may interfere with his chief ambition.

A stopover will be made on the way West at Chicago, where the greater Boston boys will be special guests at the Edgewater Beach Hotel for a day or two, putting on a special exhibition there for the edification of the mid-west sectional competitors who should be duly impressed with the impressive artistry of their victorious Eastern rivals.

From Chicago it's on to Los Angeles and the famous and fashionable Ambassador Hotel.

The Atlantic contingent will have several days to become accustomed to the concrete courts so predominant in California before getting the South, the Far West and the competition.

They meet similar winners from the south, the far west and the mid-west, four players in each division, including the mixed doubles in which Guibord and Miss Germaine will team.

The California play will be round robin, each player meeting the other three once, the winner of most matches being acclaimed Hearst Grand National champion.

Counting the entries and the winners of other sectional divisions, it seems to be a consensus that there's no real reason why our Boston boys can't knock them off as fast in California as they did in Boston and New York.

There may be better doubles teams around these here diggings than Guibord and Fuller. But if so they are very few and very far between.

Only a very limited group of the nationally ranked teams could stop the fury of their attack as they displayed it during the recently concluded Eastern finals at Seminole Club at Forest Hills, Long Island.

As far as the doubles went the Fuller-Guibord team just about waltzed through all the opposition, cleaning up the finals under wraps in straight sets, 6—3, 8—6, 6—3.

But the singles were a different story, a story of sheer courage on the part of a very sick Guibord, who, suffering torments from a badly infected boil on the hip, fought two terrific uphill struggles on nerve alone, pulling out both of them after his rivals had enjoyed a 2-0 advantage in sets, and a 3-0 advantage in the third set.

Better, now he's ready for the finest the country can send at him in the West. Together they should come home with the national singles and doubles titles.

TOMMY FARR TRYING TO SPOOF LOUIS

SHOWS GOOD DEFENSE

By DAVIS J. WALSH

Long Branch, N. J., July 30 (INS)—It would be difficult at this immature moment to say just what chance a curious young man by the name of Thomas Farr, of Great Britain, has with Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship, come August 26.

Because one as yet is unable to understand whether he's an athlete or a humorist, there being times yesterday when he seemed to be making some attempt to be both.

Personally, I think he was jolly well spoofing.

For instance, he fought with his left hand down below his waistline; it was lower than a thumb tack and, if he does that next month, Louis will leave the gents intellect all over the ring. And he claimed that he didn't even know where or how he had his left.

"Let's see now," said he, springing off the rubbing table and squaring away at a sports writer, who backed off, in alarm. Low? Yes, you see I hook and jab from there and it gives me leverage."

OLD SCHOOL FIGHTER

I would like to add that regarding Mr. Farr's knowledge of boxing, he gave me something to think about when he remarked a pack of ice pack. The guy knows all about the left hand and what he's doing with it. He simply thinks he's kidding the press by a few headlines and wherein effect it might have it.

I don't have to the old school Farr is with his left hand down as the crossed fight style. If there's any question about it, it's where he can move faster with his shoulder than Louis can with his hands. Personally if I was in a hurry to pick up a loose dime on the sidewalk, I don't think I'd do it with my shoulder.

Still, the boy's evidently a cutie. He wasn't making his fight yesterday. It's too early and, as a matter of fact, he may never take down his side combs, so to speak, and let us in on what he actually proposes to do until the night of the fight. Then, they say, he'll push and pull, turn and twist his man around—if he can—and cuff and clout. It undoubtably isn't any but a safety possible it will beat Louis.

PUNCHES STRAIGHT

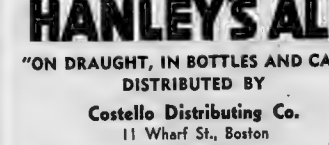
"People overlook the effect of a left jab," he says. "After you block about 10 of them in a row with your snoot, you begin to think, 'is it worth while?'"

It undoubtedly isn't but you wouldn't expect a mixed ale fighter from the Welsh mines to know that. Altogether, he's quite a refreshing young man and punches straighter than I had a right to expect. He also thinks straight. After the fight, for instance, he's going to damn his manager, Ted Broadribb—not because Mr. Broadribb is especially distressing to have about, but because, like Caesar, he thinks the managerial cut is the unkindest of all.

Broadribb, I understand, has agreed to tear up the contract on the morning of the 27th. It'll be easy to do, if Farr forgets to duck.



As fine as fine Ale can be!

Swamp Angel Class On Taunton Card

By MATTHEW KEANEY

BEST BET—L-W IN SEVENTH

Taunton, July 30—Swamp Angel goes postward once again at the Taunton dog track tonight, and as usual seems a certain winner. This time the three dogs of the race, Swamp Angel, Cauld Kail and Mutton Broth, break from the three inside boxes.

FIRST RACE—FUTURITY

CAULDRISE, STARKLY DAMION, REVIEW

P.P.	Dog	Owner	Wt.	P. Odds
5	Cauldrise, L.	Butterworth	88	2-1
6	Starkly Damion	Prosser Bros.	88	3-1
4	Review, J.	Reece	88	4-1
1	Nobil, M.	Spruey	60	7-1
6	Jaspier D., W.	Prevatt	61½	8-1
3	Final Luck, D.	Mullvey	59	8-1
7	Rail Can, F.	Spruey	58	10-1
2	Super Mac, T.	Baird	60	12-1

SECOND RACE—4-16 MILER

JUST A FIRE II, DEMONSTRATOR, RUNTON'S TAVERN

8	Just a Fire II, G.	Rogers	69	7-2
2	Demonstrator, C.	Looney	59	4-1

7	Playhouse, F.	Myers	53	8-1
4	Cathy Clair, W.	Bryant	58	8-1
6	Cap Race, F.	Spencer	58	10-1

JUST A FIRE II would seem able to repeat his recent score. DEMONSTRATOR is dangerous through his late form with RUNTON'S TAVERN is ever a hard dog to beat through the stretch.

6	Boy Bright, Lawrence	Rose	61	12-1

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY

FRANCINE, STEP, JEWEL ANN, SIDE STEPPER

5	Jewel Ann, H. B.	Bryant	58	3-1

8	Zero Acres, C.	Looney	58	7-1
2	Little Reno, C.	Shivvy	58	8-1
4	Woman, Boots		58	8-1

There's dropped FRANCINE STEP 3 mile and from the inside is shown with though JEWEL ANN will take a mile of beating. SIDE STEPPER has been racing with the best and can be a real money factor here.

FIFTH RACE—5-16 MILE

NATIE'S WAY, MAIN DRIVE, CHURCHGOER

8	Katie's Way, Jere	Williams	66	2-1
3	Main Drive, F.	Prevatt	66	7-2

2	Miss Reno, C.	Rose	58	8-1
4	Rusty Martin, C.	Looney	59	10-1

KATIE'S WAY has been dropped from the class scale and figures best here. MAIN DRIVE was returned to the last and will soon be dangerous. CHURCHGOER is a stretch running hound which must not be overlooked.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY

WHEELER, MULYNOMAH ROBIN, SWAMP ANGEL

7	Wheeler, E.	Ramo	63	3-1
3	Mulynomah Robin, W.	Stubbart	63	3-1

5	Pin Ball, J.	Fortier	61	10-1
8	Miss Jess, Jere	Williams	61	12-1

WHEELER has been close but better than place and rates the call. MULYNOMAH ROBIN can make it interesting for a top one and BROTHER, which comes up sharp, might take all of it.

5	Rockport Lassie,	Bagwell	59	8-1
6	Mount Healthy Boy	Bagwell	62	8-1
2	Miss Rockport,	Spencer	62½	10-1

Once again it's SWAMP ANGEL the boys will have to beat. CAULD RAIL is another one to beat. The fair breaks and SUTTON'S boy should be in the money through.

3 JOCKEYS Injured at SARATOGA

By the Associated Press

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons has a new two-year-old that will bear watching in Johake, a big, strapping son of Jacoda. He ran in the final race at Saratoga Wednesday, and although he was spotty during the body of the race, he finished in full stride and was running beautifully.

Indications are that Johake needed the race to put him on edge. He is owned by the E-lair Stud and is named for eight stakes winning up with the $50 000 Hopeful. He is by Jacopa-Happy Gal.

Joseph E. Widener has not had one of his most successful years in racing, but his champion sire Sickle was the leading sire of the year for winning two-year-olds in 1936. His sons and daughters accounted for $86 750.

C. S. Howard's Seabiscuit, who had a very profitable time on the New York tracks this summer, has departed for New England, where he will fill stake engagements. He may be returned to Saratoga to fill dates here for he is a big attraction at the Spa. Many horsemen hate him the best handicap horse in America today.

Injuries to jockeys and mounts have marred the first week of racing at Saratoga. Monday's lightning storm which killed one horse and injured several others was followed by a wholesale pileup in the Shannon river steeplechase in which one horse, Stephen Sanford's four-year-old gelding Tarjan Pass, was killed and three jockeys injured.

The spills, at the 13th and sixth jumps were not the only out of the way events in the race. Thomas H Ichoe's amateur, leading the final turn ran out of his course, His jockey returned him to the course and he finished fourth with A. P. Perry's Our Trouble taking the purse.

Red Rogue and Jokester also ran off the course in the sixth during Arlington. They finished one-two, but were disqualified and Boots Greenock owned by A. R. Born which had finished third was the winner.

Woodruff's Record 6 Feet Short

Dallas, Tex., July 30 (INS)—The amazing record in the 800-meter run hung up by John Woodruff, University of Pittsburgh sophomore Negro track star, today was null and void, although the lanky runner easily covered the distance in better time than ever before in official competition.

Engineers measuring the track of the Cotton Bowl, where the Pan-American games are being have found that the course was approximately six feet short. Before the races, officials in the games were informed that the track was correct to within a thousandths of an inch."

The bitterest part of it all is that Woodruff's 1:47.8, two full seconds under the accepted world mark shows he could have broken the record had the track been six feet long instead of too short.

Haas Eliminated

Ottawa, July 30 (AP)—Freddie Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, lean defending champion, was eliminated in the quarter-final round of the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship by Gordon Taylor of Montreal, 3 and 2. Haas, U. S. intercollegiate titleholder, was the last American survivor.

COCHRANE DONS UNIFORM IN GALLANT COMEBACK

LEADS Team Against SOX

PLANS TO PLAY NEXT YEAR

By JOE CASHMAN

Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, looking the picture of health, was back in uniform as he escorted his Detroit Tigers into a four-game series with the Red Sox at Fenway Park this afternoon.

It was "Black Mike's" first appearance in baseball regalia since he suffered a fractured skull as a result of being "beaned" by "Bump" Hadley of the Yankees in New York two months ago.

"Mickey's" decision to get back in harness was sudden and unexpected.

When he decided to resume managerial duties during the eastern trip his physicians fearing he might overtax his strength were he to become too active, advised him against donning a uniform.

He followed instructions during the first series in New York the past three days and told Manhattan scribes he would remain a pilot in mufti at least until the Bengals returned to Detroit.

At breakfast this morning he made up his mind to put on the baseball flannels this afternoon.

SPIRIT REMAINS

"I can't get accustomed to being around the bench in civilian clothes" he told your correspondent at the hotel. "I don't see how wearing a uniform can hurt me. Anyway, I'm going to put one on today."

Gives a calmer, softer-spoken Cochrane than before his near fatal accident. But his fighting spirit, which carried him through to victory in the battle for his life with the odds 100 to 1 against him, flames as brightly as ever.

Doctors say he shouldn't and baseball folks think he couldn't ever catch again.

But "Mike" won't admit it.

"I won't attempt to go behind the bat again this year," he said, "though I may eventually warm up pitchers now and then and occasionally catch during infield practice.

"Next spring, however, I'll probably try to give the old job another whirl. It's very difficult, you know, to quit after almost a dozen years in the majors.

STRONGER THAN EVER

"I'm feeling right in the 'pink.' I'm heavier and stronger than before I was hurt and, except for an occasional headache, I suffer no ill-effects from the accident.

"All I'm concerned about is how I will feel up at bat again. If it should turn out that the blow left me plate shy, why of course I'd be all through as a player. I'm confident I can still catch as well as ever.

"I find it a much greater strain on the nerves managing from the bench than from behind the bat.

"When I'm in a battle, I don't see a lot of things and get so exhausted, I'm able to sleep at night. I see everything from the bench and when we have a tough game, I might as well walk the floor all night for all the sleep I get.

"It was almost daylight before I closed my eyes this morning after the game we dropped to the Yankees yesterday."

HARD LUCK WITH YANKS

The Yanks, "Mike" thinks, could be knocked over right now, but he can't see a club on the horizon that might turn the trick.

"We made 45 hits to the Yanks' 17 in three games and we lost two out of three," he explained. "The luck they have is uncanny, especially on that New York park. But you must have luck to be in front.

"If the breaks should suddenly turn against the Yanks, the race may yet develop into a thriller. With Selkirk and Heinrich out with injuries and Buffing, Pearson and Gomez all in a pitching slump, it's not an unbeatable club.

"It will be unbeatable, though, when at full strength again unless it is pulled back much closer to the rest of the field while in the present weakened condition.

"And I don't know who's going to pull it back. We could if we had Schoolboy Rowe. But we haven't got him. And that's that."

Lewiston Boxer Beaten in N. Y.

New York, July 30 (US) — Billy Beauhold, clever Jersey City lightweight, retained his undefeated record by gaining an impressive triumph over Paul Junior, of Lewiston, Maine, in the 10-round main event in Madison Square Garden.

A crowd of 2,000 fans looked on as Beauhold, undefeated in 60 fights as a professional, outboxed and outpunched the tough Maine youth most of the way.

Constant Guard Over Seabiscuit

King Waits $50,000 Race

In fact the new king of the American turf is so highly regarded that he is under guard 24 hours a day.

The champ is now quartered at Suffolk Downs for the big Massachusetts Handicap a week from Saturday.

Trainer Tom Smith, who takes as great care of the brilliant four-year-old as a scientific mother with her first born, is taking no chances.

Seabiscuit has not been a one for as long as a minute since arriving at Suffolk.

As a matter of fact even reporters are discouraged from eating and the answers given are short and to the point.

In fact all that could be gathered from the loquacious Mr. Smith was that his horse was in good condition, did not need a tightening up race and had a good chance to win.

He naturally was not too keen over the top impost of 130 pounds but after all Seabiscuit is the champ and that is to be expected.

In fact, Smith even refused to comment on the close guarding except to say something which sounded like "Ruin' no chances."

Despite this care though Seabiscuit is treated no differently from any other horse. He is taken out each morning for a half hour workout which is followed by a rubdown and he spends the rest of his day in his stall.

His food is no different from that of any poker. Two scoops of bran and carrots are the regular menu. In fact Seabiscuit a related rating entitles him to only one special provision, and that is the right to travel with his pal—Punkin.'

Punkin is a lead pony which always goes with the champ. He travels with him, goes out to the track each morning to watch Seabiscuit work and on big race days gets all the way to the paddock with his friend to wish him luck.

Incidentally Seabiscuit is really a great looking horse, and his record speaks for itself. The champ will be ready a week from Saturday and if he should lose it won't be because he isn't fit.

Bees Take Last Tilt In Cincy

Pittsburgh, July 30—Boston's sensational Bees, who completed an 11-game losing streak and fell into the National League cellar the last time they were in this town, return today only three games out of the first division and within three and one-half games of the third-place Pirates.

They come here from Cincinnati, where they dropped two games but proved they hadn't cracked by coming back to win the Thursday tilt, 2 to 1, back of four-hit pitching by Jim Turner, one of the two 30-year-old freshman "finds" who've put the McKechniemen on the map.

The other of the ancient twirling tyros is Lou Fette, and he'll open against the Bucs this p. m.

TURNER DOES IT

All this former St. Paul ace has to boast of at the moment is 13 victories as against three defeats and the lowest earned run average in the circuit.

He got even for that by snapping the aforementioned 11-game losing streak at the expense of the natives.

He beat them again in Boston last Sunday with the aid of Lady Luck.

No rival has yet oeat him twice, and so close did the Traynor troupe come to turning the trick the past Sabbath that Lou mares figure he's due to whitewash the home boys today.

The Bees were a cocky lot pulling into Smoky Town. They were hanging on the ropes after two straight defeats at the hands of the Reds, but Turner's performance completely revived them.

HITTING PITCHERS

He also stoned for his one mound inpwe by getting a single and moving around with the ying run on a single by Roy Johnson, sacrifice by Hal Warstler and long fly by Vince DiMaggio in the sixth.

15 Boston College Football Players Toil at Downs

The East Boston plant has certainly done right by Gil's Boston College football squad.

Jim Linnehan, superintendent at the Downs and a B. C. grad, has taken 15 of the football players and put them to work. Eleven of them are ushers. Four are runners for the mutuel department.

Although this ushering may not be the tough, rugged work Gil Dobie would like to see his men perform, it does much to ease the cost of education.

The ushers at the Downs are Leo Logue, Vito Ananis, John Janusas, Al Horsfall, Jim Cahill, Pete Cignetti, Walter Bryan, Ralph Worth, Jack Harrison, Charles Donelan and Dan McFadden.

By JACK CONWAY

SAHRI II and Vespasiano, the two Chilean horses which have run at Suffolk Downs this week, give added color to the thoroughbred game.

MR. BOSTON

Sahri II is one of the finest looking mares ever to start in a race in this country. She has amazing speed, and is certain to give race-goers a real thrill when she competes against Seabiscuit and other great American handicap stars in the Massachusetts Handicap on August 7.

Vespasiano was dropped into a three-year-old race for maidens and was second to Brogue in a nose finish.

Herman Conkling, steward at Suffolk Downs, called my attention to the splendid manner in which Sahri II and Vespasiano acted at the post. Each of these thoroughbreds walked to the barrier without a quiver, stood perfectly until the break, and then went on to do some fine racing.

"There are no assistant starters at tracks in Chile," said Conkling. "Trainers are expected to have their horses trained so that they will walk to the barrier, and then wait quietly until the break.

"When you see a bad post actor, you are usually looking at a horse which has not been trained correctly. Many of our American trainers fail to teach a horse how to break properly. That is why there are so many long delays at the post.

"Horses also race better when it isn't necessary for an assistant starter to battle with them to assure a fairly even start."

Villena Is a Top Jockey

I HAVE WATCHED M. Villena, jockey for the Chilean horses, in both of his starts at Suffolk Downs, and have been impressed by his exceptionally good horsemanship.

In his race on Sahri II, Villena rated his mount perfectly until he made his move on the turn coming into the stretch. The horse had plenty of fire in the dash through the stretch.

Vespasiano was also rated along easily, but didn't have quite so much speed as Brogue in the battle to the wire.

C. Shockley, owner of the Chilean horses, is a big better. It is reported he has won $100,000 in bets on his stable since bringing it to the United States.

Shockley, from a position along the rail, follows every move of his thoroughbreds when they are in competition.

When Sahri II won, Shockley was jubilant, and showered Trainer J. Cuevas with congratulations.

Shockley and Cuevas speak in the highest terms of the riding qualities of Villena. They believe their rider rates with the best of American jockeys.

In Chile, jockeys are developed with great care, and the boys have a reputation of always doing their best. In the few cases where Chilean riders have met with the disfavor of the Jockey Club they have been banned from the turf. When a jockey is banned in Chile he finds it impossible to get reinstated.

Speeding Up Suffolk Races

CHARLES F. ADAMS has given orders for the races at Suffolk Downs to be speeded up with the result that race goers got home early yesterday. I believe there has been too much delay in running off races at our New England tracks.

The post parades have often been walks.

When people fail to get home from the races until late, they lose interest in the turf sport. I also believe the owners of tracks will find their mutuel handle will pick up if the races are run off on time. There will surely be more persons in attendance at the last two races.

When the fans realize there are not going to be tedious post parades, they will make their wagers earlier.

Baseball, football, hockey and other sports found out years ago that the public demands action. In hockey, the games are usually over by 10 30 to 10 45 at night, and everybody goes home cheering.

The new policy at Suffolk Downs is a move in the right direction, and is sure to be applauded by Old Jawn Public.

Dean of Greyhound Judges Gets Trophy

The Revere track, in recognition of the presiding judge's long record of service as a racing official, will present Fisher with a trophy at the conclusion of the seventh race, which marks the 2300th event over which he has presided in the past sixteen years.

Fisher has been a racing official since 1921 at greyhound race tracks throughout the United States and South America. He is the dean of the country's greyhound judges and is regarded one of the best authorities at calling winners in the business today.

Soon after his college career in California he became interested in the racing greyhounds and it was only after a year that G. P. Smith of Tulsa, Oklahoma, devised the mechanical rabbit when the presiding judge took up an official post at the old Hialeah track in Miami.

President "Shorty" Davis of the Old Harbor Kennel Club, will officiate with the entire Wonderland board of officials in attendance.

Boy's Camp Night at Hollywood Hotel

By M. E. M.
(While N. F. T. is vacationing)

IT may be only second childhood, but Hollywood Hotel turns into a boys' summer camp this evening at 9:00 p. m. (WEEI).

It's "Make A Wish" in a tuneful way when Harriet Parsons introduces Bobby Breen, Marion Claire, and Basil Rathbone of the screen.

There's much ado about something when Bobby, as Chip, and Miss Claire, as his actress mother, meet the writer of operettas, Basil Rathbone. It's another big night on the floor show with Jerry Cooper, Frances Langford, Ann Jamison, Igor Gorin, and Raymond Paige's orchestra hitting the tunes from the drama.

CHILLY CONDITIONS

With a turn of the dial, you can "Get That Ghost" with Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy tonight at 10 p. m. (WNAC). In the Little Theater Off Times Square, you First Nighters will be cool as a chill without air-cond.tioning. Tremayne, ghost-exposer, makes love to Miss Luddy when he's not busy destroying ghoulish apparitions.

Arturo Toscanini, celebrated Italian maestro, conducts the Vienna Philharmonic Symphony in the second act of the opera, "The Magic Flute," this afternoon at 3:30 p. m. (WBZ), Salzburg, the Alpine city from which the broadcast originates, is the scene each summer of perhaps the greatest of all music festivals.

SWING SALESMEN

Salesmanship and swing music will be swung together some way this evening at 10 o'clock (WBZ). Tommy Dorsey has with him some smart-aleckish questions that will worm their way into the secret soul of five students at New York University, a salesmanship class.

Along with "Ask Yourself Another" comes the easier-to-listen-to voices of Morton Bowe, lyric tenor, and Edythe Wright, swing vocalist.

The "sweetheart of Sigma Chi" has little or nothing on America's outstanding druggist and public servant, Major Ralph W. Robey, presents the International Rho Pi Phi Pharmaceutical Fraternity Award tonight at 11:05 (WBZ).

You've heard about the busiest man in the world? Here he is tonight with Robert L. Ripley at 9 o'clock (WBZ). Joseph Marzo of Chicago, Ill., wins this proverbial title by believe-it-or-not means.

The Court of Human Relations program this evening at 9:30 p. m. (WNAC) is without Alice Reinheart. Alice is away on vacation and it seems that she "wants to be alone." Paul Stewart and Lucille Wall fill the gap in their dramatic portrayal of "I Thought I Was Going Insane."

The "Cabinet Series" admits a lady tonight at 10:30 p. m. (WEEI). The gigantic task of running the Department of Labor will be explained by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. The prominence of labor problems in recent months directs her words.

NEWS NOTES

Morton Bowe, tenor, has begun auditioning for a twice-weekly afternoon show. It's slated to have a late summer premiere.

Lucille Manners, star of tonight's concert hour, will leave New York late in August. She will embark on a four-week concert tour in New England.

George Fischer's "Hollywood Whispers" program will have a sponsor in the fall. Two firms are dickering with Fischer at the present time.

Jane Froman's Sunday night broadcasts are now coming from a larger studio. It's to satisfy the increasing demand for tickets.

Annual Beverly Farms Fair Attracts Fashionables

By BETTY ALDEN

THE NAME INTERNATIONAL seems to be the watchword for social activities this week, what with the international fair at St. John's Church in Beverly Farms yesterday afternoon . . . and the famous America's Cup races which begin tomorrow at Newport . . . Still a third event the wedding of Margaret Mitchell to Barrett Wendell, 3d, in Nantucket yesterday afternoon . . . in spite of the rumors that Nantucket is planning to secede from the United States . . . and the fact that most of the guests had the feeling of being in a distant land because they had to sail across Nantucket Sound to get there . . .

Mrs. Nathaniel Winthrop should adopt the role of Japanese flower vendor more often . . . she looked so well in her tan and blue striped kimono with flowers tucked in her blonde hair and a few embroidered on the back of the kimono . . . She was an assistant at the Japanese flower booth, so ably presided over by Mrs. Russell Burrage . . . When BARBARA BREWER it came time for the improvised Swedish restaurant to serve enticing luncheon dishes, Mrs. Burrage joined her daughter, Mrs. Forrester A. Clark, to sample the Smorgasborg and have a little relaxation at a table set under a spreading apple tree on the lawn . . . Their gowns were a perfect compliment for one another . . . Mrs. Burrage's of dubonnet print with a matching turban and Mrs. Clark's of a soft turquoise blue with a matching jersey turban . . . Alice Burrage arrived to join them later, in a golfing outfit of blue culottes . . . She was accompanied by Mrs. James M. Parker, 2d, who looked for all the world like a little jockey . . . She wore a yellow dress with a wide, green felt belt appliqued with race horses and riders, and a small, white duck jockey cap . . .

Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake was an attractive customer as she browsed around from one booth to another . . . her golden yellow dress had large white polka dots and she wore a toast colored hat trimmed with dubonnet . . . Mrs. Theodore C. Hollander, 2d, had lots of fun showing her five-year-old daughter, Beth, the ponies and entertainment planned for the children . . .

Young Set Group Sells Ice Cream

DICTATOR MUSSOLINI would be proud to have such comly signoras in his country as Anne Griess and Mary Cole, who wore Sicilian costumes and sold so much ice cream from a Sicilian donkey cart that the "sold out" sign was put up more than once during the afternoon . . . Joan Griess and Leslie Chase helped them out and when Mary had taken her turn selling ice cream, she tried her luck as a salesgirl for the grabs . . .

Both young and old shared an enthusiasm for the midway . . . where all sorts of games of chance tempted the fair-goers to spill the change from their pocketbooks into the coffers of the various booths . . . Eleanor Frothingham did a rushing business awarding prizes to shooters who knocked down the clay pigeons . . . Olivia Ames coaxed her mother to try a game of ring toss, and Dorothy Potter was surrounded by admiring youngsters when she held the Sealyham puppy which Bayard Warren contributed as a door prize . . . the lucky winner will be reported at a later date . . .

Much of the success of the bowling alley was due to tow-headed young Bill Rueter, whose boyish enthusiasm induced many inexpert or out-of-practice bowlers to try a few strings . . . Bill's sister, Ernesta, was a jolly salesgirl in peasant costume . . .

Mrs. Lyon Weyburn did a rushing business at the book stall with the help of Mrs. M. Lee Frothingham and Mrs. Charles Smith . . . Ellen Vaughan crossed the gypsy's palm with silver to hear what the future has in store and among the many others who found the various attractions a continuous source of interest were Mrs. Frederick Church, Jr., Mrs. Thomas Barbour and her sister, Mrs. James C. Huntington, Barbara Brewer, who posed for photographers for the first time since her engagement to Charles Sturgis was announced, Nancy Cassels, Ruth Weyburn, Sally Cole, Mrs. Gordon White, Lucy Lee Frothingham, Joanna Hoyt, and her little sister, Nancy . . .

Wendell-Mitchell Ceremony

The principals in the wedding at Nantucket yesterday afternoon were Margaret Mitchell, daughter of Leeds Mitchell of Chicago, and Barrett Wendell 3d., son of Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell of Chicago and Borton . . .

The bridegroom is the grandson of the late Francis Lee Higginson and is related to many of Boston's outstanding families . . . His brother Lee Wendell, who married Camilla Alsop in June, was best man, while Camilla and Mrs. Horace Soule, Jr., (Barbara Wendell) of Brookline and the North Shore, were among the pastel pink organdie-clad bridesmaids . . . they wore coronets of vari-colored bachelor buttons in their hair and carried old fashioned bouquets . . .

The bridesmaids' gowns were colored replicas of the bridal gown which was an eighteenth century style model of white organdie, made in off-the-shoulder fashion with tufts of lilies of the valley at each shoulder . . . her tulle veil fell from a wreaths of lilies of the valley and she carried white orchids . . . Nancy Montgomery of Stamford, Ct., the maid of honor, wore hyacinth blue . . .

Bostonians in the wedding party also included Charles Noble, Horace Soule, Herbert Wallis and Robert Waldinger . . . the mother of the bride, came east for the wedding as did her aunt, Mrs. Tiffany Blake of Lake Forest, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed of Chicago and Osterville, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller, Mr. and Mrs. George Buffington of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. W. Babcock of New York . . .

Chatty Notes of Society

MR. AND MRS. HEYWOOD formerly of Brimmer street. FOX, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Helena Fox, at the New England Baptist Hospital yesterday. Mrs. Fox is the former Elizabeth Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Channing Wells of Southbridge and Wianno, in Newport, R. I. . . .

IT'S TYROLEAN TIME ON NORTH SHORE

While other North Shore society girls were dressed in the costumes of one country or another, Jane Ragle represented several nationalities in her outfit for the International Bazaar at St. John's Church, Beverly Farms, yesterday. Her dress was Tyrolean, brought over from Austria by Betsy McKean, but her cap was Dutch and the two little shoe-like flower pots she held up for sale, were also Dutch. Miss Ragle is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ragle of Topsfield.

Eileen Griffin to Wed In Roslindale Ceremony

Granted that town life in mid-summer is a bit on the dull side but the affairs of the heart—weddings and engagement teas—are doing their bit toward enlivening the social front.

Many people are motoring up from the shore and their country homes to witness the wedding ceremony at which Eileen Griffin of Roslindale, a member of the Junior Philomathea, becomes the bride of David Watson Kelley of Walpole

Sacred Heart Church in Roslindale will be the setting for the 10 o'clock ceremony which will be followed by a reception and breakfast at the Philomathea chalet in Chestnut Hill

The bride's sister Mary, will be her only attendant and Edward Kelley of Walpole will be his brother's best man

Tomorrow's wedding brings to a close the round of pre-nuptial parties honoring the popular bride-elect. Among the gayest was the buffet supper which Mr. and Mrs Timothy Murphy of Roslindale gave in honor of the future Mrs. Kelley. Among the guests were Anna Hanrahan, Gertrude Furze, Rita Muir and Ella Rohrer.

Miss Griffin, who is a member of the Emmanuel College faculty and prominent in affairs of the Junior Philomathea Club, is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music. Mr. Kelley, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Kelley of Walpole, obtained his degree from Dartmouth College and Harvard Law School. He is a member of the Walpole board of selectmen.

Spruce Up With Slip Covers

You'll get a neat, glove-like fit simply by pinning the fabric to the chair—wrong side out—a section at a time, and cutting it to shape in this order

Order for Cutting Sections

1—Inside back and seat sections, cut in one piece. Leave a four-inch fold to be tucked into the crevice between back and seat. 2—Top and inside arm section. Put darts on top arm if your chair rounds off. Allow three inches extra to tuck between arm and seat. 3—Panels for the front of arms and, if the shape of your chair requires it, for top and sides of back. 4—Apron across the front. 5—Outside arms and outside back. Arrange for zipper or snap closing at side-back. 6—Pleated flounce for bottom. 7—Top and bottom of seat cushion. Boxed sizes of cushion.

Send 15c for our booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully," to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 103 West 10th street, New York, N.Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Miss Harlow Honored

A mid-summer debutante party was given for Miss Helena Harlow by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harlow of Bay State road, this afternoon.

The affair took the form of a luncheon at the Harlows' summer home on Dover road. The debutante will make her formal bow to Boston society with a tea dance at the Miles Standish Hotel on Saturday afternoon, December 11

IDEAL BEAUTY PROGRAM

By IDA JEAN RAIN

IF I hadn't seen it with my own eyes I wouldn't have believed it—a movie actress drinking milk in a night club!

But that doesn't make a sissy out of Eleanor Whitney, the petite tap star with Paramount. In fact, she has my vote for the all-American girl of the movies.

Eleanor is unaffected and ambitious, typical of the hard-working Hollywood younger set that prefers milk to champagne. Her health and beauty program is ideal for the teens and twenties

She plays tennis, rides hikes and swims. She is an enthusiast about exercise, playing hard between pictures; she also knows the value of relaxation. When making a picture she not only gets eight to nine hours' sleep, but relaxes for an hour at midday to conserve energy for the afternoon's work

As Eleanor put it

"I need to relax at noon. I get up at 6 o'clock and, unless I

Posture is all important to this half-pint star at five feet and no inches. She aims at poise rather than cuteness, and believes that even the small girl can have poise if she stands tall. Thanks to an erect posture and high heels, she manages to look five feet three inches.

There are also tricks with the hair to make the small girl appear taller. An off-the-face-curl, from the forehead up gives height. "Little girls usually like lots of little curls. If they would wear their hair soft and loose, it gives a longer line," she says.

Eleanor has one of the tiniest waistlines in moviedand—just 22 inches. She has no hips at all—dancing takes care of those—and owes her streamlined measurements to dancing, outdoor sports and sane eating habits. She doesn't have to diet, because she dislikes fattening foods and never eats desserts.

• • •

Eleanor's program strikes just the right balance between work and play, ambition and carelessness. She is ambitious, but not overly career-conscious. Grateful for the breaks she believes "some other girl could do just as well or better." Well, some other girl might, provided she mapped out a program and followed it as closely as Eleanor does. This young star has the will to win

"Very few girls are born beautiful, but any girl can be attractive if she has superb health, a good figure, erect posture, and the desire to be attractive"

Send for the "Spot Exercises for Symmetry" which will give you streamlined measurements. For this leaflet, write to Ida Jean Rain, in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

Blood Pressure Varies

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D

This the cuff-like arrangement he applies to your arm when testing the blood pressure

Within recent years, careful investigation into this subject has revealed several important facts Many persons have unusually high blood pressure, but this, in reality, may be normal for them Its existence does not necessarily mean that such persons are diseased and will ultimately suffer serious results from this elevation in pressure

It is true, too, that many persons have unusually low blood pressure, yet upon cateful physical examination no defect or organic disturbance can be detected

Of course, I do not mean that an elevation, or a marked lowering of blood pressure, is to be ignored It is undoubtedly a sign of some disturbance, which should be found if possible

When the person is subjected to a complete examination which may be a treachable cause is detected In that event necessary precautions must be taken to avoid the progress be suggested

But, as I have implied, a moderate elevation or lowering of a blood pressure from the usual individual is a good basis for concern not cause undue alarm Many persons are unnecessarily frightened when told the blood pressure is not normal."

Cooper Co-Stars With Claudette Colbert

By HARRIET PARSONS

Los Angeles, July 30—Following the completion of "Marco Polo," Gary Cooper will hie himself back to his former alma mater, Paramount, to co-star with Claudette Colbert in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife."

Script of "What Ho" which Gary was to have made for Emanuel Cohen will not be ready in time so Paramount has taken over the Cohen contract. Starting date for "Bluebeard" is tentative set for the last of September with Ernst Lubitsch directing.

Miss Colbert who has been working with a heavy cold, reported back on the Lubitsch set Wednesday. Had to give it again yesterday because Lubitsch was not satisfied with the way he had photographed her. M-G-M will have a difficult time to get Claudette to the Grand Canadian set with Clark Gable.

FASHION Highlights of Fall COATS

By ANNICE BRINK
Fashion Editor

INDIVIDUALITY is the by-word in the coat fashion situation for fall and winter

With an amazing choice of silhouettes, no two women in a single city block should look alike from a distance of fifty yards.

Art is always a new development of the ancient and ad mirable principles of line and proportion. It is far and away the most important factor in the appearance of any garment. Perfect fit and well balanced proportions are back of Mainbocher's success and Lanvin's

Yet there are some of the style trends that are going to make fashion history. It's a smart and swagger line, without being the least bit voluminous. Rather it has the curved lithesse of a lemonwood bow. Mainbocher is behind this one

For sheer excitement they can't beat a most swishing silhouette that's reminiscent of 1900 will provide more than its share. It has a trim top, broad molded shoulders, and an unpressed back pleat which juts out in the manner of Mainbocher's loose-back fullness.

Fabrics will be either soft smooth and very supple for greater drap ing qualities, or they will be covered with a swift-running design of hair, contrasting-texture thread or light weaving. But everything will have a slim air about it.

• • •

Sleeves will be straight, though these may be a gracefully drooping fullness toward the wrist. Watermelons are out!

Shoulders may be molded to squareness, blocked, or subtly folded.

What Has Happened

On her 25th birthday, Antoinette Goddard, a lovely San Francisco debutante, awakens with a feeling of great happiness. The cause of it was her fiance, Brock Milbank, scion of the prominent west coast Milbanks.

Toni felt flattered that the eligible Brock loved her when he could have had the pick of society's debutantes. Jessica Payne, an unscrupulous blonde, made no secret of his attraction for her. Even though Brock did not encourage Jessica, Toni was jealous of her.

At the breakfast table, the news that her father had gone bankrupt did not affect Toni deeply. "What was money compared with love?" she thought. "Besides, when she and Brock were married they could help mother and dad." Toni had a luncheon date with Brock. He had not telephoned so she wondered if he knew of their changed financial status.

Waiting for him in a hotel lobby, Toni is touched when one of her friends greets her with: "I'm frightfully sorry, Toni!" Toni thought her friend's solicitude had been for the loss of her father's fortune, but she learns the real reason when she buys a newspaper and a glaring headline reads: "Brock Milbank and Jessica Payne Married This Morning."

In a daze, Toni leaves the hotel and hails a taxi. She goes to the waterfront where she and Brock had spent many happy hours. There she meets an old fisherman who philosophically compares life to a net which, though it gets torn, is mended and put to sea again.

"There's healing in work," the old man had said. The thought gave Toni hope. She decides to go to New York and start anew.

CHAPTER FIVE

Bright lights of Broadway. Jostling crowds everywhere. Noise. Traffic.

Newsboys yelling the morning papers at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Toni Goddard in the milling crowd about the Astor Hotel. Tired of a long day of tramping the agencies.

A search for work that didn't lead to anything. Thousands of girls in the city wearing out shoe leather similarly. She had been in New York almost three weeks, and the end of every day was black disappointment.

But grim determination, not hopelessness, was in the taut face that was thinner than it had been in San Francisco. Come what may, she wouldn't go back.

Never! She'd scrub floors sooner than admit defeat.

But so many illusions had been discarded. The importance of a university degree in a workaday world was among the first. Toni her yen for writing. She had haunted newspaper offices.

They wouldn't even give her a try-out. There were not enough jobs for the experienced reporters, let alone bothering with a novice.

Staffs were being cut, not enlarged, she was impatiently informed.

Employment bureaus had the same tale to tell. Besides, where were her references? What was her experience? Yes, she could typewrite, but she had no shorthand. Didn't she realize there were hundreds of excellent stenographers jobless?

A social secretary? She'd had plenty of experience, giving parties, and she knew all about entertaining and the correct form of invitations, and how a ball should be run.

A RAY OF HOPE.

"If I were a beauty expert or a millinery designer, I might land something," thought Toni, appalled by the knowledge that, despite her four years at the university, she knew very little that was saleable.

She read the Help Wanted columns.

MASSEUSE, licensed, well built. Apply Kilmonda Gymnasium.

But it was a wild-goose chase, and humiliating too. For the picker of beauty curtly told her that she was neither young enough nor pretty enough, in his opinion.

Looking in her mirror as she left the place, she realized she did look rather haggard, for she had slept badly the night before, and worry didn't improve one's appearance anyway.

Despite this snub, and now more careful of her make-up, she set for hours in the waiting rooms of theatrical agencies.

Hadn't she had good parts in plays took part in the college dramatic society? And wasn't she willing to begin with small bits and work her way up?

"If the field weren't so crowded, we might land you as a blues singer," he told her as he took her name and address—and that ended it.

The first hotel had been smarter. Her mail could still be sent there. She could call for it. Keep her chin up. That was important.

When buying oranges from Bridget on more than one occasion, the sympathetic woman had drawn from Toni her continued disappointment in trying to find work.

"A SWELL SHOWGIRL"

Tonight it was windy, and a sudden gust caught Bridget's stall, scattering fruits on the sidewalk. Toni swooped down on them, calleeing them and returned them to the old vender.

"Listen, honey, there's a try-out at the New Gallic Casino at ten tomorrow morning. You'd make a swell showgirl. You go on over and tell 'em you've had experience," advised Bridget.

"But I don't know anybody to ask for." The place in question was an enormous cafe and music-hall on Broadway that was crowded nightly.

"'Twas little Cassie Doyle as lives around the corner told me they're putting on a new revue. She's in the chorus."

"Ask for Cassie. Be there early and say a friend sent you. Cassie'll see you. She's a good-natured kid," grinned Bridget.

UPON the hair trim depends the charm of the coiffure. The way some of those shearers "gouge" out tresses its terrible.

Many a nice head of hair has been put out of business for the time being by careless sniping.

New Cleanser Is Like Handful of Frost

Clears Skin To a Young Firmness

By ARLINE GOULD

Posed by Katharine Hepburn

WHEN most cleansing creams during dog days make you feel as though you were dabbling in cooled-off doughnut grease . . . it's in the nature of a miracle to find a special cleansing mixture that gives you the sensation of having dipped your face in a mint-bordered spring!

First of its kind on this steaming hot earth, and nothing short of remarkable!

It professes to do nothing more than cleanse your skin thoroughly, but it leaves your face with a firmness which invariably comes only from a salon facial redoling that costs dollars and requires at least an hour with an imported masseuse.

If your skin is tender as a rose petal, and yet you refuse to get daubed up with a cleansing cream because it leaves you feeling more bedraggled than ever, this is what you've waited for so long.

Made by one of the most famous and exclusive houses in the country is this whipped-up white stuff that's called a summer cleansing mixture. Its resemblance to cream is the only point in common.

Cool as a handful of frost, you feel actually refreshed as you smooth it over your face.

We know of nothing that would improve morale in the middle of a hard day than a quick cleanup with this. You'd face the world, the boss, or a recalcitrant roast with new fervor and ambition.

When it is wiped off, there's not a sign of the usual oily beads. And since a thorough cream cleansing before make-up is one sure way to keep a clear-grained skin, you can see why we dither a bit over it.

And we wonder why no claim has been put forth about the sensation it leaves. It seems somehow to firm as well as refins the skin texture to an amazing degree. That's where the salon-petted feeling come in.

All the lovely, enticing things you're packing into vacation luggage won't do you half as much good as one jar of this cleansing mixture that can be tucked unobtrusively in some corner!

If you wish to know where this new summer cleansing mixture may be found, phone Arline Gould, Beauty Editor, Liberty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What's the summer sun done to your eyes? If they're not as clear and sparkling as they should be, Arline Gould has comment upon a salon eye-beauty treatmen which she will tell about in her Monday article.

STATE TROOPER TO GUARD FARM

CHAPTER 367

WITH a swift look into his mirror, Dicky brought the car to a halt at my suggestion concerning my father's old aides, and, snatching off his hat, made the best bow he could manage across the wheel.

"You don't have a thought very often, old dear," he gibed, "but when you do it est magnifique. I see your point. Some of them are the best trailers in the known world. With a couple of them on the job, we'd know every move those birds made, and they also, under some plausible pretense, could keep anybody from going up there."

"How would you manage to make things right with the state police?" I asked. "They'd be very apt to sense something unusual going on."

"DON'T TELL ALL

"Of course, if I told them potentinl killers were up there who would just as soon shoot a man before breakfast as a sort of setting-up exercise, they couldn't pass the thing over; they'd have to get them out of there. But if I can get your father's men up here by tomorrow morning, there'll be no need to give them anything except an expurgated edition, which I shall furnish them as soon as we get to the troopers' headquarters. We'll go there first, so that I can catch my particular pal, Sergeant Jackson."

"Shall you need to see him, if you don't warn him?" I asked.

"Decidedly yes," he answered. "I shall tell Jackson that they're men my father wants let alone for the present unless they get beyond bounds, but until I can get dad's own men down here, I want Jackson to put a guard over the farmhouse. I don't choose to have those babies snooping around tonight, trying to find out whether dad is really there or not."

"Suppose they come while we are away. They could see the lights of the car leaving the farmhouse, couldn't they, if they were watching?"

"That's another thought," Dicky said. "And all the more reason for getting to headquarters quickly. On second thought, I think I'll telephone Jackson right away, have him rush a man over, and explain after I get down there. Things are quiet around here now. He can spare a man."

He accelerated the pace of the car, and in five more minutes we were at Bridgehampton in front of a shop containing a bocta telephone.

But I had schooled myself to sanity and calmness—outwardly, at least—by the time Dicky had finished telephoning. He did not speak until we were in the car again and speeding along the road.

"He'll send a man over right away," he said, lowering his voice, although no one possibly could hear him. "And now to explain."

"I take it we're going to Southampton jail after you see Sergeant Jackson." I said.

Defend According To Objective

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Defenders must keep before them at all times as their "North star" the number of tricks necessary to defeat the contract.

Consider this hand.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the Queen of clubs, and East's Ace dropped declarer's blank King. At this point East could count three virtually certain winners against the game contract: the club Ace, one diamond trick and the heart King. Where to look for the fourth and setting trick was the only question.

Obviously there was nothing to be done in clubs and, from the bidding, a spade trick seemed out of the question. One heart trick was certainly the limit. This left the diamond suit as the only tree that might bear fruit.

If West had the diamond Jack, driving out dummy's Ace while retaining control of the heart suit, would, if declarer had three diamonds, result in two diamond tricks for the defenders.

But there was no assurance that West had the Jack, and the crux was to lead diamonds in such a way that even if declarer had the Jack he might guess badly and leave himself open to two diamond losers.

On this quite flawless theory East led—not the King of diamonds—but the Ace. Declarer hemmed and hawed and finally decided to play the nine from his own hand, hoping that East was leading away from some such combination as Queen-ten-small.

DEAD WHITE porcelain jewelry, faintly shining, is a cool, cool note with urbane summer clothes. Porcelain beads are caught up in mossy clusters for wide bracelets, odd necklaces, clips that relieve austere necklines. Another heat waiver is clear crystal, smartest in fragile drops set in silver rings, in wristlets that tie on with black velvet, in tinkling charms for suit lapels.

No Woman Respects Man Who Permits Her to 'Henpeck' Him

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In these days of emancipation of the once "gentler sex," when every other girl draws her own pay envelope, and one in every four is said to have her own car, a "mere man" writes to ask me what kind of men these independent girls really love, or if, indeed, they love at all.

Well, my dear sir, almost any man except a "sissy" can qualify as the adored of our modern economic amazons.

Sometimes these clinging-vine men manage to get away with it when they marry masculine women—ladies who love to boss, finding in meek and timid males the perfect type of parlor footballl.

But the average clever girl, no matter how many degrees she may have taken in colleges and how fat her pay envelope, dreams of b ing wooed by a caveman.

That's why the cave-man movie always goes over big, with the best seats filled by ladies with bulging foreheads. These, after identifying themselves with the heroine, flung across the pommel of a saddle and made off with to the desert sands, leave the theater in search of their cars—and dreams.

Of course, women will not admit this is true of the emancipated type of their own sex, but all you have to do is to look at the men with whom they really fall in love.

If their maternal instincts did get the better of them, and if, in a fit of aberration, they did happen to marry a bit of male ivy, you'd see them glancing wistfully at the screen caveman, or sneaking off surreptitiously to prize-fights.

Women, politically and socially conscious, who attend clubs and listen eagerly to questions of the day, almost invariably go home and talk things over with friend husband.

It takes more than a university degree or a fat salary to change human nature overnight.

The ladies call this "getting the masculine side of the argument"—and often fall for it.

Spellbinders of their own sex, with visions of delivering the woman's vote for this or that candidate or cause, know only too well the dangers involved in having the ladies go home to talk things over.

Statistics, justice, appeals to mercy and eloquence may have swayed them to the point of becoming crusaders: BUT IF THEY HAVE A CAVE-MAN OR EVEN A NEAR-CAVEMAN IN THE HOME WHO WILL GIVE THEM A BIT OF POLITICAL ROUGH STUFF THE HE-MAN WAY OF LOOKING AT IT, THEIR VOTES MAY MATCH HIS.

Women yearn to have their husbands as counsellors and friends, unless, in a moment of weakness, they have married one of the aforesaid "sissies."

In that case it's likely they will do a little laying-down of the law on their own account and have the little man vote as they say.

Women want, more than anything else, to be proud of their husbands. They WORSHIP success, not because it insures bigger and better cars, softer and warmer furs, but because it shows they knew how to pick a winner.

It is the OUTWARD and VISIBLE proof that the husband has measured up to standard.

Innumerable Varieties Of Summer Sandwiches

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

However, it is not always easy to think of a new variety in the early morning hours when breakfast is at hand and the lunches must be put up.

We've frequently talked about sandwiches for snacks, bridges, picnics and other special occasions. We've had an idea that general sugestions on this subject might be welcome.

Most tastes vary as to seasoning, so we are going to eliminate proportions and merely try to pass along as many ideas on combinations as can be crowded into our space.

Fresh bread makes the best sandwiches and most people prefer to have it sliced thin for this purpose. Here's a helpful hint on the subject. Bread which is cold slices much more easily than at room temperature, so thoroughly chill it overnight in the refrigerator before slicing for sandwiches.

GOOD MANNERS

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Since it is incorrect to congratulate the bride-to-be, what is the correct thing to say? M

We should remember to use "congratulations" when we are felicitating the fiance or the groom, and "best wishes" for the fiancee or the bride. We may expand that "best wishes," of course, to "best wishes for your happiness," or "best wishes for your happiness always, Betty" or "May I offer my very best wishes for your happiness."

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

Sometimes even a cop must wonder if it's all worth while . . . Whings he told me today in Officer No. 1464, who turns out to be Radio Officer Leo Curran of Brighton station . . . Curran, this outfit is informed, is at home, nursing a double fracture of the left arm, at the shin, and a ragged tear in one knee . . . But you'd never know it from the Brighton police journal . . . You'd never know what happened, either, if you didn't read it here . . .

Well, Curran and his partner, John Mahar, were cruising about when the radio called to go to a parking lot where men were reported stripping cars . . . The officers responded and surprised three lads, who fled, two in one direction, the third toward Cleveland circle . . . Because he was far ahead of Mahar to turn the car around in pursuit would mean loss of time, Curran leaped out and legged it after the single-one, gun in hand, but hating to wing a guy in the back . . .

Crossing the trolley reservation, Curran booted the last rail and hit the pavement . . . His elbow snapped, but he scrambled up again, resumed the pursuit and collared the lad, who proved to be on parole from Concord—after a record of more than 70 arrests in 11 years . . . So what'd ya think in desk lieut. entered in the journal—after Curran had been hospitalized? . . . "Arrested by two special officers . . . A swell story buried like that—and the father of six kids not even given book credit for the grab . . .

FILM HIT AT MET

'Exclusive' Is Tops as Newspaper Yarn; Ann Marsters Plays Role

By PEGGY DOYLE

The country's journeyman reporters have been done right by on the screen at long last in the Met's current newspaper film, "Exclusive," Paramount production turned out by a group of gentlemen who were newspapermen themselves.

Long maligned as a breed of monstrosities, congenitally addicted to bibbling, crap-shooting and heiress-chasing, who nevertheless unfailingly manage to scoop the town—and paste their city editor on the kisser, stop the presses and dictate headlines, to boot!!!

In "Exclusive," it is a pleasure to report, the gentlemen of the press look and act as if they actually might have worked on your favorite daily.

For which Allah and the following former Fourth Estaters be praised: Rian James, one time Brooklyn Eagle columnist, who wrote the original story; John C. Moffitt, formerly of the Kansas City Star, who wrote the script, assisted by James and Sidney Salkow, product of C. C. N. Y., Columbia and Harvard, and Benjamin Glazer, an old Philadelphia Press boy, who produced the picture.

* * *

From City Editor Fred MacMurray down to Copy Boy Bennie Bartlett, the staff of the Mountain City World is tops. Miss Ann Marsters, feature writer of the Boston Sunday Advertiser and the Boston Evening American who was cast as a girl reporter on Mr. MacMurray's enterprising sheet during her latest Hollywood assignment, comes through with a very natural performance. You won't have any difficulty spotting her, fans. She appears in the picture's opening sequences and seems perfectly at home in her unaccustomed cinema setting.

It is she who discovers the mark of Carson on Reporter Charlie Ruggles' chin, put there by Leslie Nolan's intaglio ring, which has left no mistake about the ebony hue of that gentleman's starboard eye. Nolan gave these to Ruggles to remember him by after the reporter had attempted to interview him on his acquittal in a legal action charging him with defrauding the city of $2,000,000.

Ruggles, in his first dramatic role, is entirely credible as a likable, hard-working, insolvent newspaperman, who always lands on his feet, despite a perpetually unappeased thirst for liquor.

* * *

His pal and boss is MacMurray, whose marriage to Ruggles' lovely daughter, Frances Farmer, must be postponed until he can pay off a loan he took out to put the selfish, spoiled girl through college. Only he and Charlie know that the higher education of the thoughtless young lady is why a good named Gardner is seeking to garnishee Fred's wages.

When Frances learns the facts, she takes the way out that is completely incompatible with the newspaper ethics of her father and her sweetheart. She sells confidential information concerning a story Ruggles and MacMurray are working on for their newspaper, and she sells to of all people, the crooked lawyer who has bought a paper to circumvent the cleanup plans of the town's civic-minded leaders. Next, she goes to work for Nolan's muck-raking sheet, is confronted with the ghastly spectacle of a man committing suicide before her eyes because his career has been ruined by one of her stories.

But all is not tragedy. One of the season's funniest sequences is when Ruggles and Fred, after consuming all the beer in the icebox, solemnly set about finding out whether or not that light in the refrigerator really goes out when you close the door. If this little scientific miracle has ever had you guessing, let their experience be a lesson to you.

Niela Goodelle, radio's girl to the footlights, tops the Met's stage show this week. She is so lovely to look at as she is pleasant to listen to and the way she sings "Jonny One-Note" and the too few other songs in her repertoire has the audience applauding for more.

Waldron's bulky boxing bear, "Mike," here with the human mind," puts on a bout with his trainer that will have you in stitches. George Prentice's Punch and Judy show is another amusing feature of the stage show.

HELD AT LOEW'S

The start of a friendship between Clark Gable and Jean Harlow that blossomed into love is portrayed in the above scene from "Saratoga," which has been held over for a second week at Loew's State and Orpheum.

'Toast of New York' Rich Film Fare

The lusty, gaudy times of big Jim Fisk, who lived, loved and lost in the last century when they had another name for his kind than tycoon, come to the Keith Memorial screen today as "The Toast of New York."

What RKO-Radio's luxuriously upholstered production lacks in historic exactitude of story it makes up for in horse cars, hirsute lambrequins, bustles bonaza-pines, and such physical detail of the period.

Fisk, as the old-timers may recall, was one of the most colorful figures of the colorful nineteenth century. His fabulous rise, his lust for more and more power and his final collapse after he had failed to corner the gold market were hot copy for the newspapers of his day.

Edward Arnold, whose facility with dated types of robust robber barons who strive, tarry and sail laughingly is something for him and his Hollywood bosses to be concerned about, is Jim Fisk, who loses New York's nineteenth century toast, Josie Mansfield to another man, even as he lost his beloved in "Diamond Jim Brady," "Come and Get It" and "John Meade's Woman."

His adored Josie is played by the blonde and lively Frances Farmer, who is doubling as a newspaper reporter on the Met screen this week. In the flattering trappings of a bygone day, Miss Farmer appears at her most delectable.

As Dudley Nichols, John Twist and Joel Sayre (a reporter on a local morning newspaper some years ago, have rewritten this lavender-scented leaf from history, there was never a hint of drift about Josie. Her and Fisk's love was pure as the falling snow, although the yellowed newspaper clippings indicate otherwise.

Cary Grant plays Nick Boyd, whose dislike for the orchidaceous beauty who has become his partner Fisk's obsession to the hurt of their attention-demanding deals turns into love.

The notorious "Black Friday" of the post-Civil War panic makes vivid film drama, as does Fisk's icy stonewalling in the feud between Commodore "Corneil" Vanderbilt and Daniel Drew for control of the Erie railroad.

Clarence Kolb's Vanderbilt is boldly etched portraiture and Donald Meek, as the mealy-mouthed, conniving Daniel Drew, gives another one of his superb performances. Jack Oakie, as the amusing Luke, who is a partner with Fisk and Boyd in their stupendous, shady deals, is surprisingly good.

Dick Powell Tops Bills

Warner Brothers' "The Singing Marine," lavish starring Dick Powell, is playing a return engagement in downtown Boston. It is the feature picture on the Paramount and Fenway screen programs this week, partnered with "Big Business."

The Met fans several weeks ago turned out to see the Powell pictures, which boasts a large cast, including Doris Weston, Hugh Herbert, Doc Rockwell, Allen Jenkins and Lee Dixon.

Powell, cast as a bashful marine private in "The Singing Marine," becomes overnight a nation-wide radio sensation by reason of a solo he warbles on an amateur tryout radio program.

Miss Weston, the girl he loves, almost loses him when, dazed by the rush the prettier are giving him, the shy, inexperienced youth becomes the victim of a calculating siren.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

CONGRESS has sent a bill to the President authorizing construction of six naval auxiliary vessels at a cost of fifty million dollars.

They will also instill new life into the shipbuilding industry of the country, for Congress wisely provided that half of the ships should be built in private shipyards.

With EVERY SHIPBUILDING PLANT IN THE COUNTRY BUSY, as the present program of the Maritime Commission contemplates they soon will be, the employment situation in America will be vastly improved.

Eighty per cent of the cost of building a ship goes for labor, which means it GOES FOR WAGES.

President Roosevelt has another plan for the strengthening of American NAVAL DEFENSES that is essentially sound.

He proposes an increase in the personnel of the naval reserve to provide training for 300,000 men.

Mr. Roosevelt knows that neither the Army nor the Navy was prepared for adequate defense of the nation when the World War started.

He is determined that the next war will not find us defenseless.

And he realizes that nothing is so likely to KEEP US OUT OF WAR as the proof we give to other nations of our ability to DEFEND OURSELVES.

A Threat to Merit System

MASSACHUSETTS Congressman Martin issues a timely warning against the dangers threatening our Federal Civil Service.

He condemns the plan for a "ONE-MAN CIVIL SERVICE ADMINSTRATION" contained in a bill now before the Congressional Special Joint Committee on Government Organization.

He sees a deliberate attempt to abolish the existing bi-partisan commission and to substitute in its place a mighty BUREAUCRATIC PATRONAGE MACHINE.

The country should heed Congressman Martin. We cannot afford to repeat the error of European nations, bankrupted by top-heavy bureaucracies.

And the one sure way to avoid the error is to divorce the Civil Service WHOLLY and ENTIRELY from partisan machine politics.

This means the MERIT SYSTEM in every civil branch of government.

To that desirable end, and for a democracy such as ours, the Non-Partisan Federal Civil Service Commission is the best instrument yet established.

Neither should the Civil Service continue to be subordinated in any degree TO EOSSISM AND PATRONAGE.

Must We Have a New Flood?

THE constant delay and bickering that has attended New England flood control legislation cannot be readily excused.

There were quarrels in the legislatures of the participating states. The important matter was frequently tossed about and finally put off for last minute action. States argued about how little one and how much others should pay.

And now, when at long last the interstate compacts reach Washington, the Federal Power Commission records violent opposition and threatens rejection of the whole project, either in Congress or by presidential veto.

When the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers were on the rampage two years ago, everybody talked flood control and was very willing to do something about it. But as the waters receded, so did enthusiasm. Therefore the delay.

However—and this ought not to be ignored—what rivers did once they can and probably will do again.

It may require such action on the part of the rivers to give us the reservoirs and dams the people demand. Certainly, no stream, however small, could be as slow-moving as some lawmakers.

Farewell to the Blondes

THE gentleman who prefers a blonde ought to marry her now. If he waits many more years, he will have to be satisfied with the "drugstore variety."

That's the warning we receive from Dr. Barbara Moynihan of the University of Chicago.

Blondes, she gravely assures us, are rapidly disappearing in the United States, where in a few years they may be as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth.

Frankly, we are not going to worry. English, Irish, French, Italian, Polish and a dozen other peoples have contributed generously to our culture and progress.

Consequently the man in whose blood are combined the best characteristics of several lands should be a very good American, regardless of the color of his eyes or the tint of his hair.

New Hampshire Highways

NEW HAMPSHIRE, placing speed limit signs along its principal roads, has contributed much to the pleasure and safety of motoring.

The speed at which an automobile may lawfully travel should be made known to the driver.

A motorist entering New Hampshire reads that he may proceed at 45 miles an hour. He obeys. Approaching a village, he finds another marker that says "20 miles." Again he obeys. Leaving the village, he sees another 45-mile sign. Thus his journey continues.

The result is that the majority of vehicles move at the same speed. Passing is reduced to a minimum. And the danger that attends speeding at 50 miles in a 20-mile zone is practically eliminated.

The Worm Turns

Henry Ford's Courage

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

America's leading industrialist is 74 today. And still full of fight, as John L. Lewis and the CIO can tell you. His name is Henry Ford, hale and hearty at last accounts and perfectly able, he will have you know, to take care of his own, of that which he has created by his own genius, foresight, energy and courage.

Edwin C. Hill

No man alive has played a more significant part in the industrial development of America, and so much on his own, from the day he rolled out his first Model T to now, when he can reckon the value of his plants and business at three-quarters of a billion, not to mention his own personal fortune and son Edsel's.

THERE WERE TWELVE

The story of the origin of that billion-dollar mountain of solid wealth cannot, I think, be matched even in the romantic annals of American industry. There were 12 men in at the beginning, and the beginning was 35 years ago, June 16, 1903. Eleven of them had money, but the 12th had an idea.

Malcolmson, the coal merchant, had faith in the 12th man's idea and started the subscription list. His clerk, Jim Couzens, came along with $900 he had saved and another hundred dollars borrowed from his sister.

Charles Woodhall, Malcolmson's bookkeeper, put up a thousand dollars, and so did Vern C. Frey, shopkeeper, and Charles H. Bennett, a worker for a toy gun company.

The Dodge brothers, John F. and Horace E., agreed to build 650 motors, in their machine shop and to take payment in stock. Two young lawyers, Horace H. Rackshaw and John W. Anderson, drew up the contracts for the Dodges and were talked into taking a flier themselves for $10,000. These were the 11. The 12th was Henry Ford.

His contribution was his four-cylinder automobile, his engineering services and his idea that a motor car could be built cheaply enough to appeal to folks with thin pocketbooks. Thus was the Ford Motor Company born, capitalized at $100,000, with $28,000 paid in and thus began the amazing career of Henry Ford.

A GIANT COMPANY

He was then 40 years old, lacking just six weeks. As I write this I have before me the annual report of the Ford Motor Company to the secretary of state of Massachusetts, which shows that the net worth of the company is now $750,000,000. The Ford Motor Company is just that—100 per cent Ford, Henry and Edsel—Wall Street need not apply.

Henry has no use for Wall Street. He was hard up one time and went down there to borrow money and they mighty nearly took the gold out of his teeth, or tried to. So, ever since, Wall Street and the devil are synonymous terms.

HE TELLS US HOW

Now here's how he operates his business, in his own words:

"First, an absence of fear of the future and veneration of the past. One who fears the future, who fears failure, limits his activities. Failure is only the opportunity to begin again more intelligently. There's no disgrace in honest failures. There is a disgrace in fearing to fail. What is past is useful only as it suggests ways and means of progress.

"Second, a disregard of competition. Whoever does a thing best ought to be the one to do it.

"Third, the putting of service before profit. Well-conducted business enterprise cannot fail to return a profit, but profit must and inevitably will come as a reward for good service. It cannot be the basis, it must be the result of service.

"Fourth, manufacturing is not buying low and selling high. It is the process of buying materials fairly and with the smallest cost, transforming those materials into a consumable product and passing it along to the customers. Gambling, speculation and sharp dealing tend only to clog this progression."

And now, at 74, Henry Ford girds up his loins for what he sees as a threat against himself and his men—a battle with labor. Characteristically, he takes the offensive.

There's spunk in Henry Ford—Ford, the far-seeing inventor; Ford of the Peace Ship; Ford of the first $5-a-day wage, and now Ford, the indomitable fighter still.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, July 30—Thoughts while strolling: All radio stars should take a vacation now and then — even Rudy Vallee. Mrs. Homer Cummings and Dorothy Parker could pass for twins. Cinches for caricature: Clifton Webb and Paul Whiteman. Nobody can beam more hospitality than Oscar at the Waldorf.

O. O. McIntyre

And how many remember when you met the milkman at the door with a pitcher and a ticket? Gelett Burgess is one on Roy Howard in the Loud Shirt Sweepstakes. Add literati's thin men: Dashiell Hammet, Sinclair Lewis and Joe Bryan II.

Voices alike: Joe Cook and Dr. Rockwell. Biggest intellectual bet of the air waves: Hendrik Van Loon. New York's wealthiest restaurateur: Gene of the Colony. George Rector must put a lot of time on that glossy mustache. Wherever you see the Billy Gaxtons.

Nobody can fairly complain that Jimmy Walker has not effaced himself completely. Young Will Hearst is beginning to look more and more like his Dad. Jim Flagg and his 82-year-old father have more fun than most of the younger galavanters. Walter Lippman doesn't look such a highbrow.

The theater's most talented woman stages director: Antoinette Perry. For my money, Mitzi Green as the most versatile of the younger actresses. And what an annoying brat she used to be! That ritzy pajama shop where they tailor them to order from $50 a pair up.

Several New York beauty parlors, especially in the Broadway environs, are volcanoes of salacious gossip. And the source of much vicious scandal that so often assails those classed as celebrities.

In these salons operators are selected as much for volubility in "dishing the dirt" as for their cosmetic skill. In some instances stories that have rocked the town have been traced to such sources. There is little that can be done for to sue only magnifies the untruth and gives it wider circulation.

Dorothy Thompson is reputedly one of the highest paid newspaperwoman, receiving $35,000 a year for her editorial contributions. In addition to this, she makes considerable writing magazine articles and lecturing around the country. She is at the moment in the greatest demand of any writing lady of her time.

Probably the most energetic scribbler but least paid for his output is Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. While he was recently taken on the Liberty staff, most of his work has been furnished free to Rob Wagner's Script in Beverly. Vanderbilt has spent large sums on self assignments without portfolio, bop-skipping about the world, climaxing it recently by appearing at the coronation in a de luxe trailer.

Clarence Budington Kelland's son, Horace, has become one of the prime favorites among the young folk in the upper social brackets. A handsome fellow, he is an intimate of Alfred G. Vanderbilt and frequently aquires the latter's half sister, Gloria Baker, to the Long Island affairs.

Where Sid Solomon's Casino in the Park stood is now a landscaped terrace with wide promenades, splotches of fragrant flowers, benches and playgrounds. Yet it appears a civic blunder—a place thoroughly jinxed. I pass there several times a week and always it is deserted, suggesting a Coney Island merry-go-round in winter.

Why telephones should be banished: A fellow in our building just phoned and between suppressed laughs told of coming home and telling his wife he had seats for the theater. She said she would start dressing at once. And when he got himself under control, ha, ha, explained: "That's fine. They are for tomorrow night."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Can our lost ones return, lift the veil and speak to us?

Thousands have sent that question to this column — some asking, some offering proof that they can.

Now comes the strangest letter of all. Ten sign it—ten refuse to believe that the grave is the end, although it has robbed them of those they loved best.

"We feel that our heartbreak is due to our own ignorance," they write.

Elsie Robinson

"We believe that Death is simply a greater birth—a natural process of evolution—and that our dear ones have simply passed on to a finer, freer life, from which they can occasionally signal to us if conditions are right.

"If you agree with us, will you publish this request?"

I DO agree with you—and I will gladly co-operate by forwarding any material received. As an initial contribution, you may be interested in the following incident which I know to be authentic.

* * *

Wind walled about the mountain cabin—ripped through the snow-streaked darkness—clawing at hearts already shaken by dread. Serious sickness gripped the home. For sleepless nights the woman had watched with the nurses. Now, exhausted, she had gone into the next room, fallen into a stupor.

Suddenly a hand gripped her shoulder—shook her violently. She struggled, conscious of grave urgency but unable to awake. Again the hand shook her, its pressure almost painful on her tired flesh.

Frantic, she lurched for the door, her dazed mind registering the time as she passed—12:00 midnight. The next second she was in the center of the sick room, staring incredulously at the two surprised nurses and patient.

"But you're all right! Then why did you call me?"

"Wait!" she whispered. "I'm wrong! It wasn't your hand. It was my—my FATHER'S! I know h-h-because I FELT HIS TWISTED FINGERS."

They caught her as she fell—coaxed her back to bed. "So tired she's almost delirious," they said, tip-toeing away. But three hours later she was awakened again—by a wire. And this time there could be no denial.

IT WAS TRUE.

Five hundred miles south, her mother lay dying in her sister's home. She had sickened suddenly, without warning, on the previous midnight. Tiny and frail, she was slipping fast into the great loneliness.

It was January 14. On that date, long ago, they had told her that Alex was dead. NOW THE HAND WITH THE TWISTED FINGERS HAD BEEN COLD FOR TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS . . . YET MIGHT IT NOT STILL HAVE THE POWER TO SUMMON LOVE TO HER AID?

I have said the story was true. And I should know. For the woman was myself. What is YOUR evidence?

On the Nail

Egypt, the land of that mixed company, Moses, Joseph, the Pharaohs, the Ptolemies and Cleopatra, had a coronation ceremony yesterday. King Farouk, a broth of a lad of 18, was crowned, or, rather, he was invested, for there is no crown in the royal household of Egypt, that little ornament having been trampled to bits long ago by England, Turkey and other powers that have used Egypt for a shooting-lot for many hundreds of years.

Farouk is Egypt's first "independent" monarch in four centuries, but just how long he and Egypt will remain independent with England on one side of him, Italy on the other and the politically-controlled League of Nations hovering over the country like a buzzard no one can tell.

Eugene Field, the author of "Little Boy Blue," is to be remembered by his admirers. The Women's Press Club of St. Joseph's, Mo., is sponsoring a statue to the little boy whose toys so faithfully awaited his return after his death.

Field, in spite of his genuine talent for pathetic and sentimental verse, was an incurable public cut-up all of his life.

Some ten years ago I came across a public fountain dedicated to Eugene Field in the tiny hamlet of Newfane, Vt., about 18 miles out of Brattleboro. The keeper of the inn told me that Field had spent his early boyhood there. He told me also the following story about him:

Young Field lived with an aunt who took him to church every Sunday. She also took with her several sandwiches tied in a handkerchief to sustain her during the long-winded sermon.

Gene wanted to get away from Newfane and his straitlaced relative, so one Sunday morning in style opened the handkerchief and substituted for the sandwiches two packs of playing cards.

The aunt, with her eyes glued on the preacher, opened the handkerchief. The cards gushed out and sprawled all over the new, which was well filled with God-fearing folk.

Everybody in the hamlet was scandalized — and Gene was shipped west for other relatives to handle.

But years after, when Field became famous, the citizens erected the public fountain to him, although in his lifetime Field had no use for water except as a rinser.

The Russian flyers will have done us a great service if they have made us AIR-DEFENSE CONSCIOUS.

They have hopped nearly 7000 miles from Moscow to California in LESS THAN THREE DAYS.

They have smashed the complacent fiction that America is a sort of unreachable Robinson Crusoe, impregnably barricaded between two vast oceans.

Fast bombers from Asia could reach us in a HALF A DAY. Bombers from Europe will soon be able to span the Atlantic ocean in LESS THAN A DAY. If a general European and Asiatic war were to break out tomorrow we would rank SEVENTH as an air power.

We should have a great air fleet. It would be notice to the world that we are PREPARED to keep the peace.

That's That

For the fourth time in his career, Dr. Edward Francis of the United States Public Health Service has risked his life in scientific research. To find out whether flea, offspring of ticks could spread the germs of relapsing fever with which their parents had been infected, he allowed some of the baby ticks to bite him.

He found the mother ticks transmitted the cause of relapsing fever to their offspring and his discovery sent him to the hospital with relapsing fever.

The medical scientist, engaged in an endless war against disease, risks his life deliberately and in a matter of fact way that would shame many a hero of the battlefield.

There is no cheering multitude, no mass enthusiasm to inspire him to be a hero.

One of the things Great Britain is reported to have in mind in secret negotiations for a war debt settlement is obtaining war supplies and credits from the United States in the future. That undoubtedly is the MAIN thing she has in mind.

After our experience with foreign nations who have repudiated their debts and refused to even try to pay back what they borrowed from us during and after the World War, we would be fools to ever extend them credit again.

After the way they have acted, they cannot even make their credit good by paying what they owe.

There cannot be any question about what our European debtors mean when they talk of a debt "settlement." Their idea is to beat us out of more billions. They can "settle" at any time by paying what they owe and what they already have promised to pay.

They have no difficulty raising money to squander on another war. They can make the debt payments they agreed to make, if they want to.

Why are some people so touchy about their age? An Oregon woman has been sentenced to 30 days in jail as an indirect result of her refusal to tell how old she is. She wouldn't tell her age, so she couldn't get a driver's license. And because she drove an automobile without a license she was sentenced to jail.

There is no reason why any person, man or woman, should be ashamed of his or her age. After all, there is nothing anybody can do about the passing of years. If a woman wants to try to conceal the fact, which all her friends must know, that she is growing older each day, she defeats her purpose by kicking up a row when she is asked to state her age.

Almost every invention and idea seems to be born into the world with the fabled evil eye. In the course of time, after we get used to something new in the world, we find the evil eye laughing at us and we laugh too, at our old fears.

The National Resources Committee in Technological Trends, in its report on the "dangers" of television, seems to have an attack of the evil eye jitters when it says:

"When to the spoken word is added the living image the effect is to magnify the potential dangers of a machine which can subtly instill ideas, strong beliefs, profound disgusts and affections. There is danger from propaganda entering the schools, and perhaps much greater danger from propaganda entering the home."
